Beavers Receive Century Farm Award

Ted Hoover of the regional office of Pennsylvania Dept. of Agriculture presents the Century Farm Award to J. Roy and Mabel Beaver. Included in the photo are Roy and Mabel, Roy's brother Bill, Roy and Mabel's son, Michael, and his wife, Marlene, holding niece, Carrie Madden.

ACADEMIA (Juniata Co.) — J. Roy and Mabel Beaver are the third generation of a four-generation family on the same farm. It makes one realize that they are, indeed, "busy Beavers" and that the good work habits have been passed down to them from the two previous generations.

In turn, they have had the satisfaction of seeing this same quality become a part of the lives of their son Michael and his wife Marlene as they have become fourth generation farmers on the family farm.

To Roy and Mabel, the occasion of being presented with the Century Farm Award was a family affair. So, when it was time to have a photo taken of the presentation, Roy and Mabel wanted Mike and Marlene in it, as well as Roy's brother Bill who grew up on the farm with Roy.

Daughter Barb Madden and husband live in Walnut and could not get off work the day of the presentation. Mabel often babysits Carrie, their daughter, and so it was fitting that the granddaughter be in the photo since her mother could not be there.

In speaking with Roy and Mabel, it is easy to discern that family is quite important to them. They are pleased that Bill often spends the day with them, helping with the garden or with processing of the food.

His most important task, however, seems to be that of handyman. He can repair anything and also build new things such as his recently completed "calf condo."

Then there is son Mike who took over the farm operation in 1991, and his wife Marlene, who works for Annlick Farm Supply but came home just for the photo.

Part 1 Of Sinkhole Series

Sinkholes — Potential Environmental Threats — Strain Farmers' Patience, Money

Editor's Note: This series examines the difficulties when discovering and repairing sinkholes, and some of the long-term problems sinkholes can have on the farm and home environment. In the first part of this series, Lancaster Farming interviews those who, at one time, had to deal with sinkholes.

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — These are true stories:

• Years ago, a Rapho Township farmer discovered a sinkhole on his farm. He began using the sinkhole as a dump site. He told friends that the sinkhole was a gift from God.

• A farmer in the eastern part of the county found a sinkhole which opened up near enough to his barn. For years, he used the site to dump dead pigs. Groundwater was contaminated with huge amounts of bacteria and nitrates.

• A Clinton County farmer used a sinkhole that formed in a diversion ditch to allow neighbors to dump all sorts of trash, from old appliances to beaten up pieces of furniture, during a span of 10 years.

• A Soil Conservation Service (SCS) geologist remembers having to use a ladder to rescue his 8-year-old son, after playing with a friend, from a sinkhole.

What is a sinkhole, and what causes it?

There are many types of sinkholes in Pennsylvania. These areas are karst, or regions with a great deal of limestone as bedrock. Sinkhole problems are inherent in limestone areas.

Simply put, sinkholes occur when rainfall, which is acidic, makes it way down through openings in the soil and erodes away the limestone bedrock. Over many years, the erosion of the limestone gradually creates "caverns" of different sizes and shapes. The weight of overyling soil causes a collapse into cavities, creating a cave-in — this caving-in creates a sinkhole.

One night about five years ago, as a farmer in northeastern Lancaster County was harvesting corn, part of the header got caught in a rut. The farmer got out of the cab and looked to see what was wrong — and noticed a "really huge, really large" sinkhole, he said.

The farmer, who wishes to remain unidentified, said the sinkhole measured about five to six feet in diameter and about 15 feet deep. "If someone would have fallen in, there would be no way to get them out without a ladder," he told Lancaster Farming. He quickly roped off the area and, as soon as he was able, called for help from the county's Soil Conservation Service.

The farmer, who grows corn and other crops on about 70 acres, believes the sinkhole, which opened in the center of a diversion drainage area, was caused by the excessive rains of the year.

The SCS representatives were out "right away," said the farmer, "to clear out the sinkhole. They pushed a lot of topsoil away, to about a 25-50 foot circle. Then they used small stones and packed it in. They also used a plastic sheet on top, then sealed off the rest with topsoil."

Steps involved in the repair of the sinkhole were taken from the MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — This chicken house no longer houses chickens. When you drive up to the new-looking building at the home of Jay Mylin, Lancaster DHIA manager, you park on what was the old concrete chicken house floor. The building you are about to enter has a brick front and a modern office entrance.

Actually, you are ready to visit the new milk sample testing laboratory set up to accommodate the 1,100 dairy herds in Lancaster County. There are offices inside the door and a meeting room for staff and nutritionists to meet. What you came to see, the new testing equipment and computers, are housed in a spacious room designed for easy access to the equipment and other work areas.

At the heart of the testing operation is a Bently 2,000 unit to determine fat and protein, and a Bently Sonacount 500 for somatic cell count reading, about a $150,000 investment. Both machines are operated together, pulling milk from the sample simultaneously and feeding the results into the master computers.

The system has checks and balances that insure almost complete accuracy to national standards. Regular calibration tests are made, even hourly. About 400 samples can be tested per hour and at present, the lab processes 50,000

National Egg Market

ATLANTA, GA
NOVEMBER 22, 1994

NATIONAL EGG MARKET - AT A GLANCE:

Prices were unchanged to lower for mediums in the Mid-Atlantic region, and the balance of prices were unchanged. The market tone remained steady to weak with an underlying cautiousness. Demand continued to cover the full range, and was moderate to very good. Retail specials provided the best cartoned egg movement. Supplies were adequate or available. Most breakers, slaughter plants, and packing plants planned reduced schedules for the Thanksgiving holiday. Breaking stock supplies were fully adequate for the very light demand, and prices were unchanged. Live hen offerings were at least adequate for the unaggressive demand, and the undertone was about steady.

Trading levels were too few to report on heavy type with prices generally unchanged on leghorns. Demand was moderate as offerings from production areas have increased and most processing time has been booked to desired levels into the first of the month. Finished sales continued seasonally active and easily clearing at the higher side of last week's majorities. Undertone usually steady.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

Nov. 28-Dec. 4, 1994

TIME TO GATHER CONES AND BOUGHS.

WEATHER LORE

Some say if it rains on the first Sunday of December, it will rain for a week. Others say if it rains on the first Sunday of any month, it will rain every Sunday that month. Weather proverbs are as old as people's interest in the elements. They are our attempts to explain and understand our climate. Some are useful, some are ridiculous, but almost all of them are interesting. Here's another one relating to days of the month: If it storms on the first (or any) Thursday of a month, count the remaining days of the month, add to this the number of days remaining of the Moon, and that will give you the number of storms for that season

Some rain, some rest; fine weather isn't always best.

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Your crystal will sparkle when washed in a solution of 3 parts water to 1 part vinegar.

EARTHWISE

A living Christmas tree is a great idea. But unless you've prepared your yard months ago, your frozen winter landscape may not be able to receive a new tree To solve this problem, some nurseries now rent living Christmas trees You enjoy them in your home for the holidays, take good care of them, and return them when the season is over

Special Offer: For a handy chart full of interesting weather proverbs and prognostics, send $3 to Weather Chart, Dept. UF, The Old Farmer's Almanac, Box 520, Dublin, NH 03444.

OPINION

Neighbors Across The Urban Fence Row

We celebrated Thanksgiving day this week, and our gratefulness continues throughout the year. When President Lincoln in 1863 proclaimed the fourth Thursday in November, he said this day would be "henceforth a day of Thanksgiving and praise to our beneficent Father who dwelleth in the heavens."

On the national scene we give thanks for an election process that does not incarcerate (or worse) those persons who lose. Only in America can we brush off the ego, polish up the public image, and go back on the campaign circuit again in two or four years.

Locally, we talk about the "Garden Spot" of the world. The garden in this spot is not only corn, cows, and plows, pigs, and poultry. We also have manufacturing, tourism, houses, distribution centers, and retail stores. In addition, we have churches, synagogues, mosques, and temples. And we have much more. Everything and everyone together forms the composite of the whole "spot" we enjoy.

That's why the ag/industry banquet held in Lancaster this week and the similar farm/city events held around the country are so important. These events give us an opportunity to say to our neighbors across the urban fence row: "You are important to us. We recognize that what we do or what we are is made more significant because of what you do and who you are."

Competition has helped many people to achieve great things. But cooperation helps more. "United we stand; divided we fall" is a quote from history that is still revelant today when you count your blessings in this Thanksgiving season.

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Plan Worker Training

Starting January 1, 1995 training must be provided for any worker who has the potential to come in contact with pesticide treated areas, and any worker who will be applying or who will assist with the application of pesticides.

Owners of the agricultural establishment, their immediate family members, and certified applicators are the only persons exempt from training requirement.

Workers who will enter treated areas on farms, forests, nurseries, or greenhouses must receive worker protection training before they accumulate more than five days of entry time into areas where in the past 30 days a pesticide has been applied or a restricted entry interval has been in effect. Pesticides include herbicides, insecticides, fungicides, etc.

Workers must be trained in the following areas:

- Where and in what form they may come in contact with pesticides or pesticide residue.
- The hazards of pesticides resulting from exposure.
- Routes of pesticides into the body.
- Signs and symptoms of pesticide poisoning.
- Emergency first aid.
- How to obtain emergency medical care.
- Routine emergency decontamination procedures, including eye flush techniques.
- Hazards of pesticide residues on clothing.

To Train Handlers Of Pesticides

Those persons who are applying or in some way assisting in the application of pesticides must be trained as handlers.

Handlers must be trained before they are allowed to complete any handling task. Training must include:

- Hazards of pesticides.
- Routes of pesticide entry into the body.
- Need for and appropriate clothing.
- Prevention, recognition, and first aid treatment of heat-related illness.
- Safety requirements for handling, transporting, storing, and disposing of pesticides.
- General procedures for spill cleanup.
- Environmental concerns such as drift, runoff, and wildlife hazards.
- Explanation of Worker Protection Standards (WPS) requirements designed to protect workers such as notification of application and entry restrictions.

To Develop Your Training Program

There are many sources of information on the Worker Protection Standards (WPS).

Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) training materials are available free of charge or on an on loan basis at your local cooperative extension office. These materials include worker and handler training handbooks and videos in both Spanish and English.

Training must be provided in a language the workers can understand. As you hire employees, consider developing an employee handbook and orientation program for employees. This orientation program will help you document your efforts.

Also, you may be able to secure a reduction in your insurance premiums while reducing your risk to a lawsuit. There are many people available to help you. These include your local county agent, insurance agent, adult farmer instructor, chemical company representative, etc.

Take advantage of their expertise and develop your own employee orientation and continuing education program.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

ON BEING TOO SMART
November 27, 1994

Background Scripture:
1 Kings 11
Devotional Reading:
Proverbs 16:1-7

According to the Old Testament, King Sole was one of the great intellects of his day. Just as his answers to tough questions had astounded the Queen of Sheba, his mental acumen was legendary throughout the Middle East.

But, when we read 1 Kings 11, we have to wonder just how smart Solomon really was. For one thing, the man was insatiable in his appetite for women: 700 wives, princesses and 300 concubines. How smart can anyone be with that kind of home life? Note, too, that although some of the wives may have cemented diplomatic arrangements, the real reason behind their sheer number was Solomon's lust: "Now King Solomon loved many foreign women..." and "Solomon clung to these in love" (11:12) (One doesn't have to be a Biblical scholar to how that "love" here is used in a physical sense.)

Just on the grounds of common sense — which he was supposed to possess — Solomon should have known better than to build himself a harem. What kind of loving relationships can one sustain with multiple partners? This proclivity on Solomon's part was stupid, but how can we explain that with a man reputed to be so wise? The answer, I think, is that if Solomon was ever so wise, arrogance of power eventually permitted him to act with uncommon stupidity. He probably thought assembling such a harem was "smart," but arrogance led him to do what he should have realized was patently unwise.

COMMON SENSE

Beyond the grounds of common sense, Solomon also should have known better because God had commanded that he not join himself to foreign wives. (Of course, I don't believe God would have been any more satisfied if Solomon had taken 1,000 Israelite wives and concubines.) What did God have against these foreign wives? God knew that Solomon would try to please this multitude of wives by tolerating and even assisting their pagan religions. "You shall not enter into marriage with them, neither shall they with you, for surely they will turn away your heart after their gods" (11:2).

Can't you just hear Solomon protesting, "Don't be silly, this won't happen; I'm too smart for that." But what God foretold came to pass: "For when Solomon was old his wives turned away his heart after other gods; and his heart was not wholly true to the Lord his God..." (11:4). He not only tolerated the gods of his foreign wives, but he supported their efforts in establishing the worship of Ashtoreth of the Sidonians, Molech and Milcom of the Ammonites, and Chemosh of Moab.

This was no simple mistake that he made, he made it at least 700 times. Furthermore, God had specifically forbidden him this course. As the writer says, "... the Lord God was angry with Solomon, because his heart had turned away from the Lord, the God of Israel, who had appeared to him twice, and had commanded him concerning this thing, that he should not go after other gods; but he did not keep what the Lord commanded" (11:9). Solomon may have been very wise, but he was much more arrogant than he was wise. Arrogance will cancel out wisdom every time.

God tempered the consequences of Solomon's folly. He would continue as king of Israel, but his son would become heir, not to all of Israel, but just one tribe. And enemies would rise up to threaten Solomon's kingdom and ruin the dynasty he had planned.

Solomon may have begun as a man of great wisdom, but he ended up as a foolish man who squandered a great kingdom for arrogantly thinking he could make his own rules. Unlike intelligence, wisdom is not a constant in our lives; we must cultivate it and renew it every day, lest we become "too smart" for our own good.

To Host Educators From China

DOYLESTOWN, (Bucks Co.) — Delaware Valley College will host six visiting educators from northwest China for a study tour, entitled "Strengthening Agriculture Education in North-west China" from Nov. 27–Dec. 3.

The educators, from six colleges in China, will study the current status of technical and vocational education in agriculture, including rural economic development, the adoption of modern agricultural techniques, and the productive capacity of farmers in long-term development programs.

In addition, they will learn how to closer link what is taught in schools to the needs of the community by examining the need to modify special course content to encompass training in practical skills. The administration of a college, including the area of employment, finances, recruiting, records, development and curriculum, will be discussed as well.

Delaware Valley College Faculty and administration will assist the Chinese visitors in accomplishing their educational goals by presenting seminars and lectures focusing on the "science with practice" approach to learning, which integrates a student's education into national, state, and local relationships with the agricultural industry. Also, the visitors itinerary includes a breakfast reception with the Central Bucks Chamber of Commerce on Nov. 30.

The international exchange is being coordinated and funded by the Food and Agricultural Organization of the United Nations. For more information, call John Avery, Ph.D., Chairperson of the Agribusiness Department, at (215) 345-1500, ext. 2328.

Commission Initiates Investigation Of Lamb Imports

DENVER, Colo. — At the urging of the American Sheep Industry Association and members of Congress, the U.S. International Trade Commission has been requested by the office of the U.S. Trade Representative to investigate competitive conditions affecting the U.S. lamb market.

That investigation is under way and is expected to report on U.S. and foreign industry profiles and whether there is government assistance to the industries in Australia and New Zealand. If it is determined that there is assistance, the investigation will look into whether it constitutes a subsidy under U.S. countervailing duty law. In addition, the investigation will examine U.S. and foreign markets, U.S. imports and exports, U.S. market penetration, price comparisons of domestic and imported lamb, and any other information relating to competitive factors that affect the U.S. lamb industry.

The report will focus on the period 1991-1994 and will be submitted to the USTR at the earliest possible date, but no later than Aug. 14, 1995.

In 1994, industry members have been heard discussing the "flood of foreign lamb" as they watched imports rise to near 1993 levels. In 1993 the market saw imported lamb at the highest levels since 1979, and at the second-highest levels in 20 years. This rise represented an annual increase of 46 percent, to bring the market share held by imports to about 11 percent of the total U.S. lamb supply.

A strong concern raised by these facts is that, despite the industry's intense promotion of domestic product to U.S. consumers, import levels continue to rise. So far in 1994, information compiled by ASI and federal agencies shows imports are near levels during the same period in 1993.

The primary cause for the increasing market share of imports can be summed-up in two words — cheap prices.

Spot checks this fall at the wholesale level of U.S. boxed cut prices compared with current import price quotes shows import pricing to be as low as half of domestic prices in some cases. For example, U.S. loins averaged $5.50 per pound compared to $2.20 per pound for imported loins. U.S. French racks averaged $8.30 a pound compared to $5.50 for imported French racks. These unfair prices are further supplemented by advertising programs.

"Since July of this year, due mostly to a temporary short supply, the average price for American lamb reached historical high levels," said Cindy Siddoway, ASI's Legislative Council chair. "The increase in supply of foreign lamb, coupled with aggressive pricing, is cause for alarm and great concern."

The concern is twofold. When foreign lamb prices at the retail level are consistently $1 to 50 cents a pound lower than the domestic product, it makes it difficult for domestic producers to maintain their market share. In addition, it forces U.S. growers to lower their prices to below break-even levels for American growers, even though the U.S. product is clearly of superior quality.

"It's obvious that the pricing practices are a huge concern to domestic growers," said Siddoway. "The ITC study to be completed in 1995 will help set the stage for actions to address the lamb import problem either through legislation or action by the administration."

The U.S. International Trade Commission has scheduled a formal public hearing in connection with the investigation for Feb. 23, 1995 in Washington, D.C.

Your Farm Credit Banker. Nobody Knows The Field Better.

Sure, you'll find Farm Credit bankers all buttoned up, ready to talk short- or long-term loans, mortgages and sophisticated lines of credit.

But underneath the shirt and tie, you'll find the one thing the other banks don't offer. A fellow farmer.

Most Farm Credit loan officers were born and raised on farms and got their college degrees from ag schools. Nearly all of them grew up with 4-H and the Future Farmers of America.

And, if that's not enough, every single one of our loan officers goes through the toughest ag lending training program in America.

That means when you talk to a Farm Credit loan officer about any kind of ag loan, you won't have to waste your time translating to someone who's book smart but farm foolish.

What's more, because Farm Credit loan officers understand farming as well as they understand finances, they're not only smarter, they're faster. After all, they have the same loan closing authority as many local bank presidents.

So when you need competitive rates or creative options, see your local Farm Credit banker. Because nobody knows the field better.

Cumberland County DHIA Celebrates 75 Years

BETH MILLER
Cumberland Co. Correspondent

HUNTSDALE (Cumberland Co.) — The members of the Cumberland County Dairy Herd Improvement Association had a lot to remember and a lot of awards to give out during their 75th anniversary banquet at the Penn Township Fire Hall.

The high herd in milk award was won by Fred B. McGillvray with an average of 22,241 pounds of milk.

Al Hart Holsteins took home the high 2-year-old in protein award for Lady, a cow that posted 24,621 pounds of milk and 840 pounds of protein.

Donald A. McCullough captured the high 2-year-old in butterfat award with his Number 99 cow and her production of 24,290 pounds of milk and 1,134 pounds of butterfat.

The low herd in somatic cell count award was won by Ray Thrush and his Jet-Rae Farm with a figure of 86,000.

Woody Kelso took home the high cow in protein award with 1,043 pounds of protein and 31;474 pounds of fat recorded for his Number 643 cow.

Curtis and Ann Day were double winners at the banquet.

The Days went home with the high cow in milk and butterfat award for their animal Pearl which recorded 34,780 pounds of milk and 1,485 pounds of butterfat.

Also, the Days captured the high herd in protein and butterfat award with figures of 724 pounds of protein and 888 pounds of butterfat.

The county winner of the DHIA herd management award was Mark A. Naugle.

Two new officers also were elected to three-year terms on the local DHIA board. Those chosen were Gerald Davidson and Harold Myers, both from Shippensburg.

The DHIA members took time as well to look back at their association's past, starting in 1919 when the Cumberland County Cow Testing Association was formed, to the modern DHIA.

There was one cow tester at the beginning, and at the end of the first year, there were 276 cows that recorded an average of 7,325 pounds of milk and 245 pounds of fat.

By comparison, the DHIA ended its 75th testing year with 7,037 cows averaging 17,770 pounds of milk, 662 pounds of fat and 571 pounds of protein.

One of the most interesting parts of the banquet came when County Agent Duane Duncan presented a videotape of an interview he did with G. Weir Strock. Strock is 101 years old and is the only living original member of the Cow Testing Association.

In the interview, Strock talked about the many changes and challenges that life has presented him, his family and the dairy industry.

Another look into yesterday was provided by Harold Boldosser, a former DHIA manger and supervisor. Boldosser showed how DHIA testing has been done over the years. For instance, he said all test results were computed by hand when the association began in 1919 and for many years after that. Only in relatively recent times have high-tech computers taken over that job, Boldosser said.

County Dairy Princess Kim Orris also spoke at the banquet. The entertainment was provided by the Rev. James Herman and his "friend" Chester, who performed a ventriloquist act.

David Slusser, the DHIA state manager, said the DHIA has proven its worth in the past and will continue to do so into the future.

"The DHIA records program, through testing, analysis, refinement, and the creation of policies and regulations, has evolved in this way," Slusser said. "It has become a valuable management and evaluation tool for dairymen, the agriculture industry, and educators.

"Few programs can equal its impact on and importance to the success of an industry," he said.

Record Attendance At National FFA Convention

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — More than 34,000 FFA members, teachers and guests converged on Kansas City for the 67th National FFA Convention on Nov. 10-12.

The record number of attendees promoted the convention theme, "FFA—The Leadership Advantage," with a cross-section of speakers who challenged members to further enhance their leadership skills, build bright futures in the science, business and technology of agriculture and continue community involvement in their home towns.

Members from throughout the country came to experience the world's largest annual student gathering and to show their support for the blue and gold of the FFA.

The National Agricultural Career Show was the first event ever to fill the recently completed expansion of the Kansas City Conference Center. This expansion to 62,000 square feet of show space accommodated 284 exhibitors including 25 displays in the hall of states, a special exhibit from NASA, an 18-store shopping mall, the FFA Food Court, and a stage that included live entertainment, speakers, and audiovisuals.

During the opening reflections program, Florence and Al Joyner, both Olympic gold medalists, kicked off the convention by inspiring an enthusiastic crowd of students with a message promoting positive attitude, goal setting, and the courage to persevere against the odds. During other sessions, Secretary of Agriculture Mike Espy and Mary Fisher, founder of the Family AIDS Network, Inc. addressed the audience.

Other distinguished speakers at the convention included Miss America Heather Whitestone, Vietnam Veteran Dave Roever, Tennessee Commissioner of Agriculture L.H. "Cotton" Ivy, and Guy Kawasaki, author and former director of software product management for Apple Computer, Inc.

FFA members participated in the multitude of convention activities including contest competition, awards ceremonies, leadership workshops, and the honoring of sponsors who make possible the extensive offering of FFA programs through the National FFA Foundation. The Honorary American FFA Degree, Distinguished Service Award, and VIP Citation were awarded to businesses and individuals who support the organization. The American FFA Degree, the highest degree earned by an FFA member, was conferred upon 1,454 recipients.

In transacting the official business of the organization, delegates voted and passed on their recommendations to the board of directors to continue the progress of the FFA.

The National FFA Alumni convention held on Nov. 9 included leadership workshops, awards ceremonies, and another successful auction, raising more than $50,000 to support FFA programs. Bill Borer from Ohio purchased the pickup truck that was donated by Chevrolet through the FFA Foundation. All items sold at the auction were contributed by various businesses and individuals.

Lancaster Chamber Banquet A Farm/City Event

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — "The core values of our country were generated by hard-working men of the land, proud of their heritage and working to pass on their fruits from generation to generation," said Richard Witwer, board chairman, Lancaster Chamber of Commerce and Industry, in opening remarks at the Ag/Industry banquet Tuesday evening.

"Farming is like any other business. You deal with all the same problems business deals with on a day to day basis. Your assets are renewable, but your goals are identical. This common thread makes the Chamber such an important element in Lancaster County agriculture."

Jay Howes, manager of ag services, listed activities for the year based on goals to include education about farming of the non-farm public and involving the non-farm members of the Chamber in the farm educational process. One of the major events was the open house at Kreider Dairy Farms where five to six thousand people took the farm tour. The progress of the implementation of the nutrient management laws and the water use regulations were also monitored.

"Agriculture is the starting point of the food chain," Howes said. "But it must be market driven. The consumer is the customer; the consumer pays the bills on the farm, and the consumer is our boss."

In the annual presentation of the prestigious George C. Delp Award, Everett Newswanger, managing editor, Lancaster Farming, was recognized for "dedicated service and contributions to Lancaster County agribusiness."

David Hosler, ag committee chairman, said Newswanger is involved in communications for the agricultural industry and often stands up for agriculture and defends the importance of agriculture in his editorials. These editorals "often elicit the comment that they deserve wider circulation," Hosler said. "Newswanger is a friend and an advocate of our industry and a communicator on our behalf."

Delp made the presentation of the award given in his name, and was the recipient of the award in 1989. Other recipients include: Max Smith, 1990; Amos Funk, 1991; Jay Irwin, 1992, and Paul Whipple, 1993.

Representative Samuel Hayes was the featured speaker and challenged the large group of Ag/Industry people to be aware of the opportunities we have in America and to recognize the responsibilities we have to keep America strong. As in the time of Abraham Lincoln, we are tested to see if this nation can long endure. If we as farmers and business persons are dedicated to fulfill our dreams, we will endure. If we fail, we will be recorded as the other nations who have failed and left broken remnants of what was given to them.

"It is easier to lose our freedom than to gain it back," Hayes said. "Let's be thankful in this season for the blessings bestowed upon us and not lose what has been given to us."

In other business, Witwer announced that Kenneth Meck was elected to the Chamber board of directors as a farm representative for a three-year term. Roger Garber's three-year term has been completed, and he was recognized for his service.

The Lancaster Chamber is the only such organization in Pennsylvania to have a full-time paid agricultural representative on the staff. Because of this committment to agriculture, the agriculture committee of Lancaster County; to promote and enhance the economic vitality of production agricultue and agribusiness; to represent the interests of agriculture in government; to raise the public consciousness of the importance of agriculture, and to increase public understanding of modern agricultural production practices.

Milk Protein Research Reveals Potential

NEWARK, Del. — A few years ago, here at the University of Delaware, we conducted a research project on the protein composition of milk and its relationship to blood type in Guernsey and Holstein dairy cattle.

We identified the distribution of the many different proteins in milk among genetically different cow families and found relationships useful for selection.

The study, which would not have happened without the foresight of dairy industry leaders such as Dr. James Deubler, Newtown, Atherton Hobler, of Princeton, N.J., Frank Brown of Port Deposit, Md. and Harry Haskell, of Chadds Ford was conducted cooperatively between the Delaware, Ohio and New Jersey experiment stations.

Now, new research in Canada and Europe has found that these different protein types in milk influence the making of cheese, which has immediate commercial interest.

Overall, we can recognize at least four major milk protein families that make cheese, including Alpha-s-1-casein, alpha-s-2-casein, beta-casein, kappa-casein; and at least four major milk protein families that do not make cheese-beta-lactoglobulin, alpha-lactalbumin, immunoglobulin, serum albumin, which remain in the whey on cheese making, unless a whey cheese, such as ricotta, gjetost or mizithra, is made.

Each of these protein families, except the last two, are subdivided into at least two and as many as six genetic variants and their combinations.

These are based on small but significant differences in their amino acid composition, which cause them to behave differently on contact with digestive enzymes in the gastro-intestinal tract as well as under cheese-making conditions with the rennet enzyme.

Kappa-casein, for example, has the genetic variants A, B, C and E; therefore, cows or goats or sheep can have in their milk the following 10 protein genotypes: AA, AB, AC, AE, BB, BC, BE, CC, CE. These genotypes are actually found in the various cattle breeds and families in different frequency.

Among these 10 types, the BB seems to have specific commercial value. When eight European dairy cattle breeds were tested, it was discovered that they differ significantly in the BB type: French Normandy, 44 percent; Jersey, 38 percent; Brown Swiss, 28 percent; Tyrolian, 23 percent; Gelbvieh, 23 percent; Danish, 11 percent; Simmental, 6 percent; and Holstein, 2 percent.

The type AA was distributed with opposite frequency among these breeds. This is commercially interesting, because milk not only has differences in fat, protein, lactose, mineral contents, but varies in the percentage of casein in total protein, which determines how many pounds of cheese are possible form 100 pounds of milk. Furthermore, during cheese making, significant factors include the time it takes to precipitate the casein, the time it takes to firm the curd, the degree of curd firmness and the overall yield.

It has been determined that the kappa-casein BB cows, as compared to AA, have milk that has a 24 percent shorter cheese precipitation time, 51 percent shorter curd firming time, 85 percent better curd firmness, 0.2 percent units higher casein content and 5 percent higher cheese yield. The other types of C and E also are inferior to BB.

It has also been found that beta-lactoglobulin BB cows have 3 percent more casein in their milk and a higher cheese yield compared to AA type cows, thus making beta-lactoglobulin as interesting for cheese making as kappa-casein.

Again, the distribution for these BB types among European dairy cattle breeds differs significantly: Danish, 74 percent; Jersey, 40 percent; Holstein, 35 percent; Brown Swiss, 34 percent; Gelbvieh, 31 percent; French Normandy, 27 percent; and Simmental, 26 percent. The other milk protein families and their genetic types are still waiting for research to be better understood.

There is some discussion under way to include these genetic types in herd sire-selection programs and in milk payment plans. But routine rapid testing methods need to be developed first. Meanwhile, it is because of these long-year studies, including the one here at the University of Delaware, that we now have milk payment and sire proofs that include protein or solids-not-fat and somatic cell counts. These factors have served as a reward and incentive for dairy farmers to select in a specific direction, which also benefits processors and consumers through a better product.

The combination of protein and somatic cell count is especially important, because with low somatic cell count, the cheese yield is higher than it is from the same milk, when the somatic cell count is high. Paying critical attention to the types, not just the amount of protein in milk, means differences in profitability for the cheese maker and, ultimately, for the dairy farmer.

Lebanon DHIA Members Meet

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

MYERSTOWN (Lebanon Co.) — About 150 people attended the annual meeting of the Lebanon County Dairy Herd Improvement Association, held Tuesday at the Myerstown Church of the Brethren to review the organization's activities over the past year and elect directors.

An affiliate of the Pa. DHIA, the county organization's president Ken Sellers, of Annville, introduced members and helped present production awards.

Elected as directors were Jay Good, Phares Musser, and Jay Weaver.

Dale Hoover, with a farm near Sellers, is on the 14-member state board of directors.

Hoover talked about the efforts of the state organization to provide premium services at competitive costs, while at the same time attempting to reduce overhead costs.

The state organization has had a number of personnel changes, including the hiring of Ted Brown as state director of finance and personnel, and with Dixie Burris being named to head the state laboratory, located in State College.

Other significant changes include paying off the property debt at the main state office/ laboratory at State College, which it had been renting from Penn State University.

He also announced "fee adjustments" that went into effect Oct. 1, "Because the last two years, we've been operating at a deficit," and also because, "A detailed analysis showed that most rates were not reflecting costs," Hoover said.

In particular, Hoover said that mostly the twice-day testing program users would get the biggest adjustment, while not much change would affect those using the AM-PM program.

He also announced that the state annual meeting has been set for March 10 in State College (more details to be announced later) and has been planned as a one-day event, rather than a two-day event, as had been the tradition.

David Shenk III, regional manager, told the group that they should stay in touch with their technicians, especially with respect to scheduling testing times. He said that communications of information such as times that are inconvenient for testing, is important to maintaining efficiency and service.

He also announced that the state is offering a Westfalia Dairy Plan computer program for use in dairy herd management.

He said it is a good software package, although more training programs are to be held.

Previously, before significant changes in personnel at the state level, Pa.DHIA had promoted the use of another computer program. This new program is being offered for sale to members with a free-trial period. Shenk said members should ask their technician about the program, or call the state office at (800) 344-8378 and ask for Dan Smith, or Pat Torrelli.

In other business, Kenneth Winebark, county extension agent, announced to the group that he would be leaving extension service after 10 years working in the county, with an emphasis on helping develop its youth programs.

From the left, in the front, Vincent Wagner of Ju-Vindale Holsteins, holds his two DHIA production awards earned for low herd somatic cell count and high protein, while Curvin Good holds two awards he received for high milk production and protein production by a individual cow, which also topped the state for milk production. In the back row, from the left, are county directors Dale Hoover and George Ungemach, Pa. DHIA Director of Finance and Personnel Ted Brown, county board chairman Kenneth Sellers, and Kenneth Winebark, county extension agent.

In a farewell address, Winebark told the group that he is going to continue to work with youth, but through a youth ministry. For some time, Winebark has been working with troubled children.

He said his plan is to devote himself to doing as much as he can to helping these children that most agencies or organizations can't attract or don't want.

Md. Recycles Empty Pesticide Containers

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Lewis R. Riley has announced that the 1994 empty plastic pesticide container recycling program was very successful and surpassed the 1993 program in the number of containers collected for recycling.

The Maryland Department of Agriculture held 24 collection days at six sites located throughout the state. Four collection days were held in Chestertown, Easton, Salisbury, Frederick, Beltsville, and Street during July, August, September, and October. Several collections were also made at pesticide dealer facilities and commercial agricultural applicator sites.

"The inspection, collection, and processing of over 25,000 plastic pesticide containers have reduced the potential for contamination of ground water and Chesapeake Bay while saving valuable landfill space," said Riley.

Maryland's program is a combined effort of state, county, and private industry working together to protect the environment. With the cooperation of Mid-Shore Regional Recycling, Kent County Public Works, Wicomico Public Works, Frederick County Public Works, Harford County Public Works, Maryland Environmental Service, United States Department of Agriculture, and Ag-Chem Inc., the program has been effective in removing plastic pesticide containers from the waste stream so they can be reused as an energy source or for producing additional plastic containers. Ag-Chem, Inc. of Girdletree, Maryland provided the chipper to grind the plastic containers into flakes, which are transported to a contractor for recycling.

All of the collected pesticide containers from Maryland will be shipped to a recycling facility under contract with the Agricultural Container Research Council (ACRC). ACRC is a nonprofit corporation dedicated to work with organizations to facilitate the collection and recycling of plastic containers for crop protection products.

"The response of farmers, commercial agricultural applicators, and other pesticide users has been very encouraging. Sites used during the 1993 pilot program experienced a substantial increase in participation during the 1994 program," said Riley.

"Because of the high interest in the program over the past two years, the department will again offer the recycling program during the 1995 growing season," Riley said.

For additional information, contact Mary Ellen Setting, chief of the department's pesticide regulation section, (410) 841-5710.

Samples are picked up from supervisors on 133-mile afternoon runs around the county five days per week. The lab also runs five days per week so that results can be available on a regular basis the next day after the sample is taken from the farm.

The turn-around time from Manheim to Raleigh back to Manheim on strategic information needed to make immediate management decisions on the farm is less than two hours. This information printed in Manheim is then sent out the same day so that it is in the hands of dairy farmers within two days after the sample was taken by the supervisor at the farm. The regular monthly reports are printed in Raleigh, and these reports are sent to members from the DRPC.

Many herds in Lancaster DHIA are small, even as small as from 12 to 40 cows. Because of this unique situation the local program has been developed with these small herds in mind. At the same time the larger herds have maintained association because of special programs that cater to herds with on-farm computers.

The lab began operation Oct. 1, and one week later was certified. Problems have been minimial.

For anyone who has an interest in visiting the new lab, a special open house has been planned for Jan. 16-17, 1995. The lab is located two and one-half miles northwest of Manheim along Old Line Road.

SCS (now NRCS) standard and specification.

(As a result of recent USDA reorganization, the Soil Conservation Service is now called the Natural Resources Conservation Service, or NRCS.)

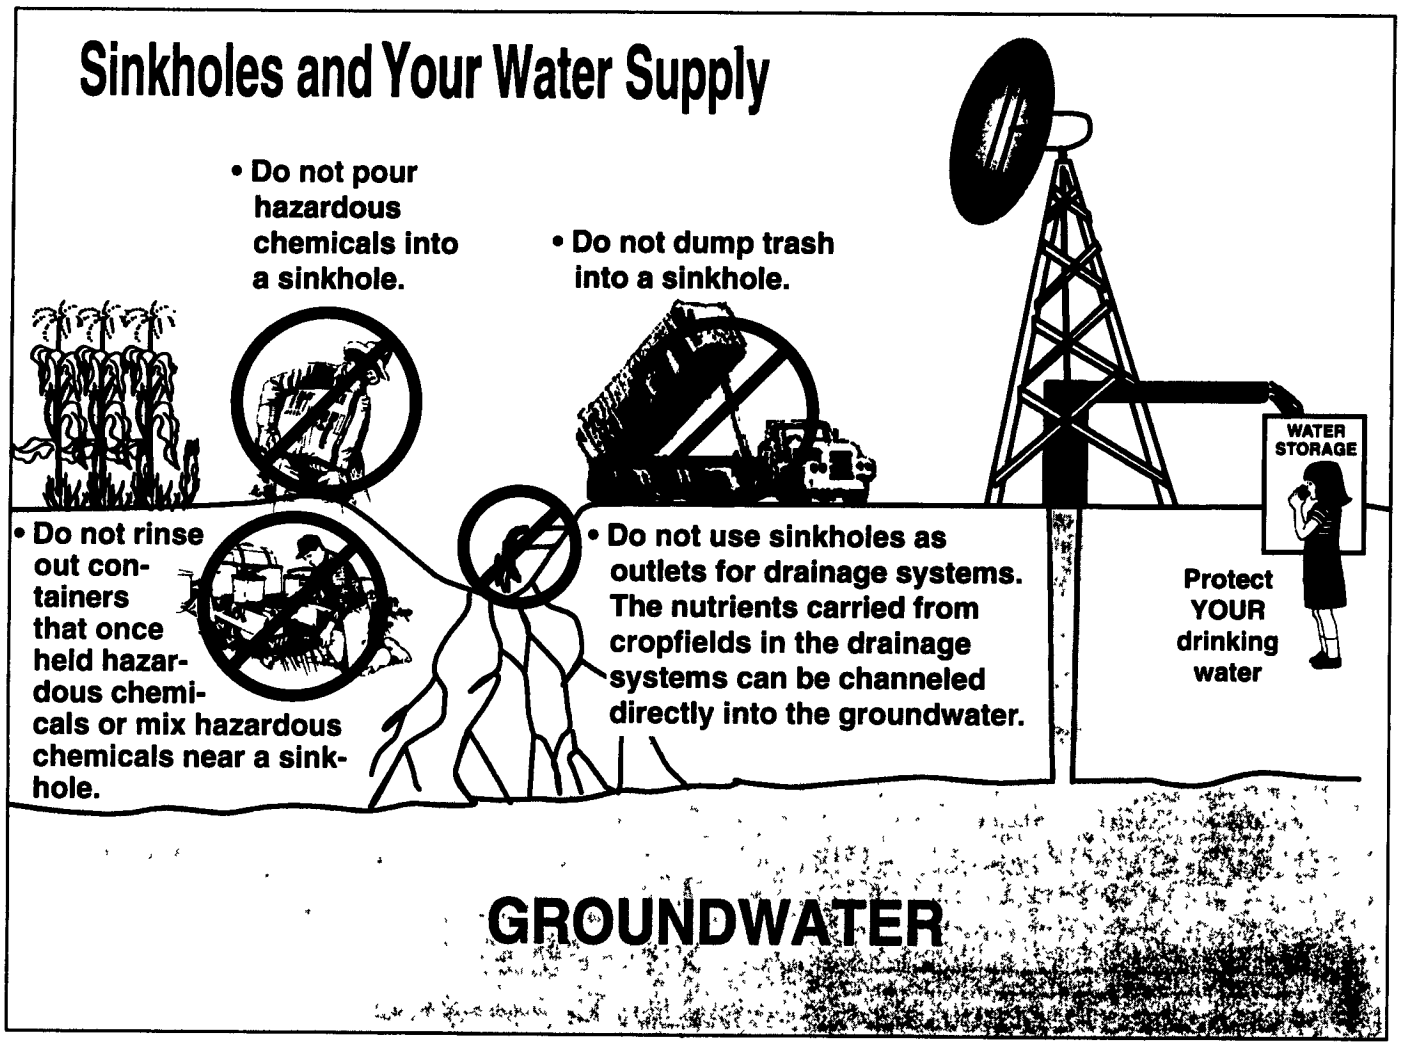
Many farmers, along with society as a whole, have learned the importance of protecting the environment. More than ever before, they are doing all they can to ensure water is not contaminated, soil is not lost, and hazardous material is properly disposed of.

But years ago, many farmers recount how their grandfather and father covered over old dump sites that once contained a sinkhole or two. Nothing was ever said. After all, a place was needed to put the trash.

Now, slowly, the importance of protecting the environment has — for want of a better expression — started to sink in. There are correct ways for dealing with sinkholes, if only farmers would take the time and learn.

But for now, dealing with the problems inherent when sinkholes occur continue. In light of the heavy precipitation that was the year of 1994, more and more sinkholes opened up all over the county and the state. Recently, a building in Allentown was demolished because a sinkhole opened up underneath it. In April this year, a sinkhole appeared on Rt. 422 near Lebanon. Another one, measuring 20 feet in diameter, opened up on Rt. 31 in Carroll County, Md., killing a 24-year-old man.

Sinkholes can appear on any property, residential or commercial. In an August 1993 issue of a local newspaper, there was a story about a sinkhole that had opened up, trapping a man planting at his mother's grave. Sinkholes are ubiquitous — they can happen anywhere.



Sinkholes and Your Water Supply
• Do not pour hazardous chemicals into a sinkhole.
• Do not dump trash into a sinkhole.
• Do not rinse out containers that once held hazardous chemicals or mix hazardous chemicals near a sinkhole.
• Do not use sinkholes as outlets for drainage systems. The nutrients carried from cropfields in the drainage systems can be channeled directly into the groundwater.

GROUNDWATER

But many sinkholes open up in farm valleys.

"Sinkholes seem to occur more frequently along the base of mountain slopes where acidic runoff enters limestone valleys," said Bruce Benton, an NRCS geologist.

Benton was instrumental in helping put together the NRCS standard and specification for Manure flows into this sinkhole. Sinkholes are direct conduits to groundwater — your drinking water.

A typical sinkhole that has been used as a trash site. This can pose problems to groundwater.

This sinkhole in Clinton County was the subject of an 18-minute training video. For 10 years it was used as a dump site until it was repaired using SCS guidance.

ABA Works Toward Genetic Improvement

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — Ayrshire enthusiasts and board members who attended Ayrshire Breeders' Association forums at either World Dairy Expo or the North American International Livestock Exposition agreed that genetics will be their top priority.

"We spent a lot of our time discussing genetics, particularly the use of young sires," said Jim McConnell, Ayrshire Breeders' Association president. "We left convinced that breeders and the AI industry will work together more closely to put more qualified young sires into testing programs.

"I have not been more optimistic about the future for our Ayrshire breeders than I am today," said McConnell at the end of the October board meeting in Madison, Wisc. "Working together as a team, we can see our objectives accomplished and be rightly proud of our association and the programs and services it provides."

The board spent almost its entire meeting in working on a strategic plan that will guide the association for the next five to ten years. Genetic improvement and promotion, as noted in the surveys, forums and other discussions among breeders and members, occupies the forefront of that plan. The board established several objectives to escalate the economic traits that assure profitable Ayrshire herds. Promotion of the breed and its benefits will take front stage.

McConnell said the positive financial position of the Association is a step in the right direction, and just cause for optimism.

"We expect to complete our second year in a row with a positive financial position, setting us apart from the trends of the other breeds," he said. "We all recognize that we have a lot of challenges ahead of us, but it's comforting to know that we are ready to meet them in a new and exciting way. We have taken bold steps to assure that Ayrshires will be making news for the foreseeable future."

Agency Combines Farm Service Functions

POTTSVILLE (Schuylkill Co.) — Changes are coming — and it's the Farm Service Agency (FSA).

It came into being recently, when President Clinton signed into law a restructuring plan for the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) that will improve the way USDA agencies do business in Schuylkill County, said Roger Neumeister, acting chairman of the Schuylkill County FSA committee.

The FSA will administer commodity price and income support programs, farm ownership, and operating loans and the federal crops insurance program. The new agency combines all or part of three agencies familiar to farmers — the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA), and the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation. Other loans offered by the former FmHA will be assigned to a new rural development agency.

In addition, the FSA will offer conservation cost-share assistance under the Agricultural Conservation Program, as well as cost-sharing and land rental payments for the Conservation Reserve Program.

"We want producers to know that the reorganization did not eliminate any programs," he said. "What will change are that these services soon will be available to producers on a 'one-stop' basis. The whole purpose of the new FSA is to be able to provide better, more efficient service and to make it easier for farmers to use our programs.

"The agencies are merging at headquarters first." Roger said. "The combination of staffs and functions at the county level will come in time. In the meantime, farmers can receive service as usual at their county offices."

In Pennsylvania, most USDA offices are located with others in the same county. Some cross-sharing of equipment and space already occurs. However, more sharing of data will occur between staffs in these offices.

At the local level, farmer-elected committee members will continue to oversee farm program administration and will take on additional duties in overseeing other FSA programs.

treating sinkholes. These standards and specifications were used to a great extent to help seal a sinkhole which developed in Clinton County.

What concerns many is what happens to the sinkholes after they form.

"There is a lot of trash that seems to be getting dumped in some of these sinkholes," said Benton, "such as old pesticide cans and oil cans and whatever else that goes into a trash heap. There is probably a potential there for some of those that aren't filled to be a physical hazard."

As a result, NRCS put together a standard and specification for treating sinkholes. They are based on drainage area and sinkhole type. But they are used as a guide, and can be modified to the existing site conditions.

Benton assisted in selecting a large sinkhole for treatment in Clinton County. The sinkhole appeared in a diversion.

The site for the sinkhole repair proved to be a "classic site" for a video demonstrating how a sinkhole is repaired. That video is available from the Clinton County Conservation District office.

Sinkholes can be particularly troublesome if they occur at a construction site. One such sinkhole opened up on the site of a manure storage pond under construction. (More on how the sinkhole was repaired will appear in the next article in the series.)

Can potential sinkhole sites be located beforehand? That proves difficult, according to Benton, because of the soil characteristics. Ground-penetrating radar can detect some cavernous areas in sandy soils, but the high clay content common to soils in limestone areas limits the depth of penetration needed to detect any subsurface cavities.

Why sinkholes occur is not always understood. "It seems like everywhere I've seen them, there's no real definition as to why they occured," said Benton. Sinkhole formation may have little or nothing to do with a drainage area. Where they will occur is unpredictable.

Those who build in potential sinkhole areas — and in Lancaster County alone, there are many of them — must remember to use caution before disturbing or moving soil. "You've got to be careful — you've got to be looking for those things," said Benton. "If you're working in a limestone area and you're digging below the surface, you should anticipate you might run into some of those problems."

Remember, sinkholes are direct conduits to the water supply of a farm or a municipality. The following guidelines should be used if a sinkhole is discovered:

- Do not pour hazardous chemicals into a sinkhole.
- Do not rinse out containers that once held hazardous chemicals or mix hazardous chemicals near a sinkhole.
- Do not dump trash into a sinkhole.
- Do not use sinkholes as outlets for drainage systems. The nutrients carried from crop fields in the drainage systems can be channeled directly into the groundwater.

Cleaning up a site should remain a high priority for farmers who have a sinkhole. But where can a farmer seek financial assistance?

Neither the Chesapeake Bay program administered by the conservation district nor the ACP program administered by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) has cost-share monies available for correcting sinkhole problems.

In the case of the Cumberland County sinkhole that developed at the site of a manure storage pond, the farmer had to pay about $1,000 for materials and labor.

"We really haven't got the financial support to repair sinkholes," said Benton. "That would be the real incentive for farmers to utilize our expertise and experience."

A sinkhole opened up in this pasture in Columbia County. Sinkholes can pose challenges during cleanup and maintenance, but are repairable.

Editor's Note: Select farmers in the Lancaster County Mill Creek Project area can have their sinkholes repaired free of charge under a new education program. More about that program next week in part two of the sinkhole series.

Crop Feed Grains Eligible For Farmer-Owned Reserve

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — "Producers can now place 1994-crop corn, sorghum barley and oats into the farmer-owned reserve (FOR)," said Richard Troutman, acting chairman of the Berks Farm Service Agency (FSA) Committee. "Producers can earn quarterly storage payments of 26.5 cents per bushel for corn, sorghums and barley, and .20 per bushel for oats."

Producers must file intentions to place grain in the reserve by April 30 at the local office of the FSA, formerly the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS). Although filing an intention does not obligate a producer to place grain in the reserve, a nine-month Commodity Credit Corporation price support loan agreement must be executed before the intention is filed.

"Producers may not obtain the FOR loan until the expiration of a nine-month nonrecourse price support loan," Troutman said. "For further information, producers should contact the local FSA office at the Berks County Ag Center."

Beavers Receive Century Farm Award

It was an important event for all of them as they looked back to the past when the family first started to operate the farm.

In March of 1891 Roy's grandfather, William A. Beaver, and great-uncle, Thomas K. Beaver, purchased the farm. They remained partners for some years, and then William bought Tom's share. Tom continued to operate the general store and post office located in one end of the large home while Willam and his wife, Emma Troutman Beaver, lived in another part. The T.K. Beaver General Store and Academia Post Office were kept in operation by some of the Beaver family until the late fifties.

The store was a typical old country store with groceries, hardware and sundry items for sale, as well as gasoline after a time. All that remains of the store are some shelves and a few miscellaneous items. The showcases and the post office "pigeonholes" were sold some years ago, but the original room that held the store is still a part of the home building and is now used for storage.

Roy's father, Jesse T. Beaver, was born and raised on the farm, helping with chores at an early age. He married Pearl Bryner, and they took over the operation of the farm after some years. They raised hogs, cattle, chickens and ducks, in addition to crops of corn, hay, wheat, barley and oats.

A proud moment for Roy at age 15 was when his father purchased a 1941 Farmall H tractor and allowed Roy to drive it by himself from the dealer's place to the farm. Roy has special memories of his grandfather who asked grace at every meal and read his Bible every night. Roy carried drinking water to his grandfather in the f ield every day at 9:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.rn., as he was plowing with horses. Sometimes he gave Roy a nickel, a small fortune to the boy. His grandfather liked to go to the barn to see the horses up to the time of his death at age 98.

Roy took over the operation of the farm in 1961, farming with his father, Jesse, until Roy and Mabel bought it in 1982. Roy chose to eliminate the ducks and chickens and to raise just cattle and hogs. Mabel has helped with farming in every way down through the years, milking cows, driving the tractor and helping to load hay, as well as growing a large garden and canning the results.

As Roy's parents did for them, Roy and Mabel continue to help son Mike with many phases of farming, even though Mike has been operating the farm since 1991. They agree that they would never want to live anywhere but on the farm, and they say there is just nothing like seeing a perfect field of corn or a newborn animal. They live in the middle section of the original farmhouse, next to the end that housed the store and post office. Mike and his wife live in the other end, and so the tradition of two Beaver families living in the big farm home continues.

From the time that Mike was quite small, he knew he wanted to be a farmer. His playtime was filled with farming, using toy machinery. After graduating from high school, he became a milk tester and still helped Roy wth farming, and then saw his dream come true as he took over operation of the farm. He married a farm girl, Marlene Book, who also loves the farm. She had heifers and dairy cattle in 4-H. Although working away from home during the day, Marlene helps with farming chores in the evening and on weekends.

Mike chose not to raise hogs, as his father had, and so he has just dairy cattle and crops. They milk 30 Holsteins and have a lot of young cattle. The farm has 215 acres, with 90 cultivated, and they rent another 50 nearby. They raise the sample grains as the precedinq generations did, except that they have added soybeans as a crop. Each generation makes its own improvements, such as having added a larger silo, skid loader, larger tractors and a milk transfer system. Where they once had to wait for the threshing machine to come, and have many men come to help to fill the silo, now they have their own combine and silo-filling equipment. However, sometimes they need extra help in order to get the work done in time to take advantage of the good weather. Jobs that used to take 20 people now take 2.

Roy agrees that things sure have changed since his boyhood when they milked 18 cows by hand, selling the milk to the Academia Creamery located down over the hill from the Beaver Farm. Nearby the creamery was a feed mill which once ground all of their grain. The mill was owned by the Beers brothers and then by Bub Palm. Water for the mill dam was supplied by the Tuscarora Creek which went on a rampage in the 1972 flood, ruining the mill. Thus three generations of the Beaver family witnessed a tragedy which wiped out much of what they had taken for granted all of their lives in the view from the top of the hill.

However there are some constants in the lives of the generations of the Beaver family.

When asked if they have an "official" farm name, Roy replied simply, "Well, not really - it's just been known as The Beaver Farm ever since I can remember."

Vegetable Growers To Meet

GREENSBURG (Westmoreland Co.) — Strawberry production will be a new feature at this year's Western Pennsylvania Commerical Vegetable and Berry Growers Seminar to be held on Thursday, Dec. 8, at the Days Inn, Butler, from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Concurrent sessions will be held for farm marketers and, for the first time, strawberry growers.

Every year growers from western Pennsylvania as well as parts of Ohio and West Virginia meet to learn the latest information and products available to help them grow top quality produce. F.O. 4 NFMS $1.11

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Middle Atlantic Order Market Administrator Rex F. Lothrop has announced a producer nonfat milk solids price of $1.11 per pound for October.

The weighted average differential base milk price was $1.04 per hundredweight and the price per pound of butterfat was 73.17 cents. The producer NFMS price was down 1 cent from last year while the base differential increased 18 cents.

The standardized base milk price per hundredweight for producer milk with the market average nonfat milk solids content and 3.5 percent butterfat would have been $13.33 and the excess price would have been $12.29.

The base price per hundredweight was unchanged from the previous year, while the excess price decreased 18 cents. The nonfat milk solids price, applicable to handler payments, was $1.119 per pound for the month, down slightly from last October. The weighted average price for October was $13.34 per hundredweight and would have been approximately 19 cents higher without the effect of the Class III-A price.

Mr. Lothrop said that producer receipts totaled 521.8 million pounds during October, a decrease of .7 million pounds from last October, and the average daily delivery of 3,284 pounds per producer increased 129 pounds or 4.1 percent from a year earlier.

Total nonfat milk solids production for the month was 45.7 million pounds. This represents an average NFMS test of 8.77 percent, up from 8.76 percent last October. Class I producer milk totaled 247.5 million pounds and was down 5.6 million pounds, or 2.2 percent from last October.

Class I milk accounted for 47.43 percent of total producer milk receipts during the month, compared with 48.43 percent in October 1993. Base milk accounted for 93.41 percent of total producer milk receipts in October compared with 94.11 percent last year.

The average butterfat test of producer milk was 3.7 percent, down from 3.73 percent last October.

Middle Atlantic Order pool handlers reported Class I in-area milk sales of 203 million pounds during October, a decrease of .2 percent from a year earlier, after adjustment to eliminate variation due to calendar composition.

National County Agent Association Honors Hughes

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster livestock agent Chet Hughes first met his objectives when he noticed the kind of response he received from a two-day workshop in July 1993.

Cattle feeders across the county were so impressed with the information provided about understanding beef cattle grading and quality assurance at the workshop that they wanted more.

So Hughes, again, helped set up another workshop during the same time this year.

Hughes' work on showing cattle feeders how to evaluate cattle for market, including live and carcass trait evaluation, so impressed the judges at the annual meeting of the National Association of County Agricultural Agents that they honored him in September with the Search for Excellence recognition in Casper, Wyo.

The award was presented, according to Hughes, for his efforts in working with the cattle feeders in this area on producing safe, low-fat animal products.

Lancaster County is home to as many as 100,000 head of fed cattle, which makes up a large portion of meat products on the eastern seaboard, according to Hughes. (There are no statistics available from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture on how many cattle are raised for beef in the county.)

The goals of the program, which was authored by Dr. Bill Henning, Penn State extension red meats specialist, were to have cattle feeders understand quality and yield grading, particularly the USDA grading systems, and how they work. The other goal was to get producers concerened about quality assurance, including understanding of materials used in caring for cattle.

"Producers see the cattle graded live at the market, but they don't often get to see them hanging on the rail and what they look like and how they're graded in carcass form," said Hughes. Many who grade the cattle, like the judge in the show ring, have to make estimates on finish and approximate percentage of the body in actual red meat. "People find out that it's not real accurate when you're sitting there eyeballing the cattle and making that decision," Hughes said.

Only when the animal is hung up on the rail do you get the real information about percentage of fat, marbling, and size of loin eye.

Also, the workshops helped the producer understand why certain animals are sold as "Choice Yield Grade 3 or Choice Yield Grade 1 or Select Yield Grade 3," or whatever, according to the extension agent. Hughes writes a monthly column in Lancaster Farming, called Livestock Ledger, of which he reported the findings of the July 1993 meeting.

The workshop in 1993 focused on grading. The 1994 workshop focused on late feeding of cattle, using a 1,600-pound steer to illustrate how much fat is on an animal that is overly finished.

"It's an eye-opening experience for anybody who's never been through it, even people that buy cattle every day," said Hughes.

The success of the workshops have been evident. This year, Hughes said the intention is to combine the workshop with a field day at a Lancaster County finishing farm, in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association.

"The first one went over so well, the people really appreciated the fact that we took the time and effort to put that together," he said. "Cattle feeders felt it was very valuable to them."

One of the concerns Hughes has is about the lack of uniformity of the product in the beef industry, and that will be the focus of upcoming workshops. More will be presented on how cattle feeders can understand and make use of expected progeny difference (EPD) information when selecting cattle.

There is an effort to get the cow/calf producers involved that finish beef, because of the ways they can select EPDs for more marbling, bigger ribeye, or less fat. "We're starting to identify carcass traits and, by using those bulls, we should be able to, in time, produce a more uniform product."

Hughes said, "That's the beauty of EPDs — you now have more predictability. You can select a high marbling bull and use it in the herd. I'm not sure if our producers have latched onto that yet.

"It can be done. But it's going to be a while until the whole industry gets to that point.

"Every little thing producers can do to fine-tune their operation is helpful," he said.

Windy-Knoll View Farm: Luck, Love And Holsteins

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

MERCERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — From the intense urban sprawl of the southcentral-eastern part of the state, head west on the Pennsylvania turnpike, then go south on I81, into the lap of the Appalachian Plateau, and something happens.

Housing developments fade away from the landscape, gradually thinning, almost disappearing.

It is the western edge of the banana-shaped Cumberland Valley, before it bends further south across the Mason-Dixon Line into Maryland. It is an area whose people live off of and understand agriculture.

This area of Franklin County is dominated by the silos, barns, crop fields and the pastures of family farms, but these farms are different from those in the state's more eastern counties.

These family farms still have woodlots, areas along streams and fencelines that harbor wildlife. And there are places for young and old to explore on their own.

It is the locale of James and Nina Burdette's 200-acre Windy-Knoll View Farm and its 67-head registered Holstein milking herd.

The farm is aptly named.

Several miles outside of Mercersberg proper, the dairy farm sits on the face of the knobbed head of a great, rounded, beached-whale-looking ridge of land that gazes southwest, straight into the winds of winter storms as they flow over the mountains on a northeast journey.

From the manicured front lawn of the stone farmhouse at Windy-Knoll, with its grape vines twisted on a wire trellis, flower beds, shade trees, and children's playhouse, the horizon is shared by a large open sky and Two Top Mountain, and its sister formations.

It can get quiet as evening ebbs.

Just to the west, Cove Mountain's long, flat ridge-top draws a longer and straighter line where land and sky meet.

To the north, not visible from the farm, is yet another mountain.

The three mountains create the edges of a "bay" of fertile valley land — an alcove from the broad swath of the limestone-rich Cumberland Valley.

On winter evenings after milking, while changing back the swinging cattle gates in the barnyard, the Burdettes' sons — Jason, 16, and Kyle, 12 — can look out to see a fuzzy halo of muted light coming from the backside of Two Top mountain.

If there is time, and their chores are finished and done well, the brothers may go skiing on the lighted slopes and meet other teenagers from the area, from high school, or the church youth group.

Nina, who raises the calves from birth, she said she has been treated, especially this fall, to spectacular sunsets.

This place in the world is just beyond the edge of man's 24-hour, civilized activities.

At night, the heavens can still be seen from the ground, not obscured from view by the glowing security blanket of electrical lights that urban and city people draw up over themselves.

At Windy-Knoll View Farm, the stars still shine, and the fall of darkness is welcomed for its invitation to rest and re-energize.

A queen lives at Windy-Knoll Farm.

She is Windy-Knoll View Ultimate Pala, former supreme champion of the World Dairy Expo, the Maryland State Fair, the Pennsylvania Holstein Championship, etc.

Perhaps history will make more of her as time passes. Through the technology of embryo transfer, she has many daughters. In fact, the royal bloodlines have been running true, with 15 of these princesses have been named All-American Award winning Hoslteins (perhaps more to come).

Classified by the Holstein Association of America as an Excellent, Pala has brought world attention to the Burdettes.

Pala's image in on the farm sign that hangs from a tall post, along the long farm lane, at the edge of the farmhouse yard.

She is important to the Burdettes, but is valued not just for her stature and productivity and the commercial attention to her strong genetic traits for physical character, but also for her behavior.

According to James, Pala is a "smart" and gentle cow with an apparent affinity for people. And, while the queen tends to be boss of the herd, the nature of Pala is conducive to ease of handling and care.

And the Burdettes can demonstrate how her offspring seem to

The Burdette family stands in the lawn behind their Windy-Knoll View farmhouse with Windy-Knoll View CC Pear-ET, a homebred daughter of the family's well-known Ultimate Pala cow. From the left are Nina, Kyle, James and Justin. The cow is Justin's.

Nina Burdette feeds a young heifer calf which may grow up to be a sixth generation Excellent.

Kyle Burdette gives a hug to Prissy, a daughter of Windy-Knoll View Ultimate Pala.

A love of the great American West goes along with horses. James Burdette talks to this young yearling stallion he bred. He says he wants to breed a good paint.

Dairy Management Inc. Announces Marketing Plan

ROSEMONT, Ill. — Fueling new momentum for product demand by partnering with leaders from farm to marketplace is the thrust behind an aggressive, five-year industry-wide marketing plan announced by Dairy Management Inc.

Dairy Management Inc. (DMI), a joint venture of the National Dairy Board (NDB) and United Dairy Industry Association (UDIA), will work with state and regional promotion groups to advance six priorities:

• Halt the decline in total per capita consumption of fluid milk and restore total fluid growth to equal population growth.

• Continue to expand per capita cheese consumption.

• Expand per capita consumption of butter.

• Utilize 240 million pounds of milkfat through new uses.

• Make non-subsidized exports a significant and ongoing business for U.S. dairy product suppliers.

• Create/maintain a positive dairy marketing environment to enable advertising, promotion and research programs to achieve maximum impact.

"This organization is charting a bold, fresh approach to dairy marketing with one thought in mind — making a major difference in milk sales," said Herman Brubaker, Ohio dairy producer and DMI chairman.

"This plan attempts to accelerate the industry's movement toward becoming more customer-driven by challenging the status quo and facilitating the changes necessary to capitalize on the demands of the marketplace. The new enterprise is moving quickly to position itself as an industry marketing resource for increasing milk sales," he said.

To ensure nationwide involvement, the DMI board announced the formation of a board committee, chaired by Bob Giacomini, California dairy producer and DMI vice chairman, to work out the details for involving non-UDIA members in the industry-wide plan.

The DMI board has expressed a strong commitment to reaching out to non-UDIA members and seeking their participation in the national effort. "Our minds are open and our interest clear to seek opportunities to allow all units to participate in leveraging all our resources," said Giacomini.

Until this new committee can work with the non-UDIA members to address their involvement, the DMI board recommended that non-UDIA members have access to programs at member unit cost and be invited to participate in all meetings.

The DMI board unanimously approved a two-person executive office at the recommendation of chief executive officers Cynthia Carson of NDB and Tom Gallagher of UDIA. Gallagher will serve as DMI chief executive officer, managing all staff and financial resources, market research and marketing. Carson will report to the CEO as DMI general manager, taking the lead in strategic planning and evaluation, product research, nutrition research and education, issues anticipation/management, corporate public relations and industry relations.

"Tom and Cynthia worked hard and long in sizing up each other's overriding strengths prior to the recommendation," said Giacomini. "Tom has a solid business head and is a bottom-line guy, and this fits with managing staff and resources. Cynthia has demonstrated that she can bring smart, creative people together and successfully lead them to strategically making a difference for the industry."

The DMI board also reviewed recommendations regarding resources necessary to implement the strategic plan.

"A Washington marketing presence is prudent in light of the issues the industry faces and the influence that organizations housed there have on the marketing of milk and dairy foods," Brubaker said. In addition to the Washington office, a centrally located office will also be maintained in Chicago.

The strategic plan was developed through a joint planning process including NDB and UDIA boards and staffs, along with UDIA member managers and their staffs.

N.Y.-N.J. Milk $12.97

ALBANY, N.Y. — Dairy farmers who supplied regulated milk dealers (handlers) under the New York-New Jersey marketing orders during October 1994 will be paid by handlers on the basis of a uniform price of $12.97 per hundredweight (27.9 cents per quart). The price for the corresponding month last year was $12.83 per hundredweight.

Market Administrator Ronald C. Pearce said that the price was $12.85 in September 1994. The uniform price is a marketwide weighted average of the value of farm milk used for fluid and manufactured dairy products.

A total of 11,560 dairy farmers supplied handlers regulated under the New York-New Jersey marketing orders with 947,875,173 pounds of milk during October 1994. This was an increase of 4.4 percent (about 40 million pounds) from last year. The gross value to dairy farmers for milk deliveries was $124,120,022.65. This included differentials required to be paid to dairy farmers but not premiums, deductions authorized by the farmer, or assessments.

Regulated handlers used 419,152,677 pounds of milk for Class I, 44.2 percent of the total. This milk is used for fluid milk products such as homogenized, flavored, low test, and skim milks. For October 1994, handlers paid $14.15 per hundredweight (30.4 cents per quart) for Class I milk compared with $13.59 a year ago.

Handlers used 151,167,355 pounds of milk for Class II products, 15.9 percent of the total. Class II products include fluid cream, eggnog, ricotta and cottage cheeses, ice cream, and yogurt. Handlers paid $12.15 per hundredweight for this milk.

Milk used to manufacture Class III products including butter, cheese (other than ricotta and cottage cheeses), and whole milk powder totaled 369,390,520 pounds (39 percent of the total). Handlers paid $12.35 per hundredweight for this milk.

Milk used to manufacture nonfat dry milk (Class III-A) totaled 8,164,621 pounds (.9 percent of the total). Handlers paid $10.42 per hundredweight for this milk.

The uniform price is based on milk containing 3.5 percent butterfat. For October 1994, there was a price differential of 6.3 cents for each one-tenth of one percent that the milk tested above or below the 3.5 percent standard.

All prices quoted are for bulk tank milk received from farms in the 201-210 mile zone from New York City.

PSU Conducts 22nd Bull Test

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — A full-capacity group of 75 bulls has been penned at the Pennsylvania Meat Animal Evaluation Center (MAEC) for its 22nd annual bull-testing program.

This group consists of some of the finest bulls available from progressive, performance minded eastern U. S. beef cattle breeders. The bulls, which had to meet minimum requirements for participation in the testing program, include 22 Angus, two Red Angus, 32 Polled Herefords, 15 Simmentals, a pair of Charolais, one Limousin, and one Beefmaster.

The bulls were be given a 21-day adjustment before being weighed Nov. 8 to begin a 112-day test. Once on test, the bulls are weighed every 28 days, individual feed consumption obtained, and feed efficiencies calculated. Reports are made available to the public periodically.

At the end of the test, total average daily gain for the group will be calculated, as well as adjusted yearling weights. The bulls will be given a comprehensive breeding soundness exam and scanned ultrasonically to determine fat thickness and loin-eye area.

Up-to-date Expected Progeny Differences (EPDs) must be made available by the owners. Final indexes which compare individual bulls to their breed-group averages are calculated for all bulls.

After the bulls have passed minimum criteria for structural correctness and breed character, approximately the top 75 percent of them will be selected for sale in Pennsylvania's 22nd Annual Performance-tested Bull Sale, scheduled for March 31.

In other news the MAEC is also receiving pens of pigs for the winter swine progeny test. Each pen consists of four to six pigs by one sire and preferably several litters. The purpose of the progeny test is to evaluate the sire of the tested pigs.

Progeny pigs are delivered to the MAEC weighing between 40 and 65 pounds and given a one-week adjustment. They are then weighed every 14 days until average weight reaches 230 pounds.

As each pen concludes its test, the pigs are slaughtered and a variety of carcass information collected. The gain information, feed efficiencies, and carcass information add up to a comprehensive evaluation of the offsprings' sire.

For more information about Pennsylvania's performance testing programs or to request sale catalogs, contact Glenn Eberly, Meat Animal Evaluation Center, 651 Fox Hollow Road, State College, PA 16803, or telephone 814-238-2527 (or 814-865-5857 to leave a message or send a FAX).

also carry similar behavioral traits, even as calves. With about a third of the herd direct descendents of Pala, the differences can be sensed after a few minutes among the herd.

The cows and heifers that appear unafraid and curious and calm, the ones with the "receptive" look in their eye when confronted with human interaction, are most likely Pala's offspring, or grand or great grand daughters.

The others seem more aloof and uncertain.

"I don't like dumb cows," James said. "Dumb cows don't stay around here. They got to be able to get through to the (feed) trough and walk to the barn to get milked."

Of course, the skeptical may suggest that perhaps the Burdettes are biased toward the Pala cow family, and spend more time with those animals, washing them, handling them, getting them used to being comfortable with people.

Maybe.

But, last week, while James and Nina were sitting at the round maple table, in the wood finish-themed farmhouse kitchen, the wall-phone by the door rang.

Kyle answered and told his father the caller was someone from Toronto requesting approval for a collect call. James got up from the table to take the call. It was about breeding Holsteins.

Later, another phone call, from another state in the United States, was taken by Nina and she discussed some of the placings of Pala daughters.

And so it is, James said. The calls, the interest, the inquiries, the talk about breeding ...

"The phone bills are atrocious," Nina said, "but that's part of the business."

The Burdettes grew up in Maryland, on farms located about four miles apart, but they went to different high schools.

Nina and James met through 4-H activities. She raised horses and beef steers and one year she had dairy heifers. He raised Ayrshires and grew up milking cows on rented farms that would range from 100 to 500 acres.

James was active in 4-H and as a teenager showed three All-American Ayrshires.

He also was active in dairy cattle judging, and the Maryland team was second in the nation by three points, in his last year of eligibility. James was fourth top individual nationally that year

The three-point loss of first place was disappointing to James, Nina said. She said that Maryland had always sent its team on a trip to Europe as a reward for winning a national title. She said it was perhaps his only chance to travel to Europe.

But these days James does travel, around the United States, judging, showing, and looking at cattle. A review of photographs taken over the past several years at many national and regional Holstein shows will reveal at least one Burdette, usually James — as owner-breeder, breeder, showman, or judge.

He can be expected to continue to judge important shows, but he has turned down some offers in order to not eliminate Justin's eligibility to show cattle — if the father is judge, son can't show.

James said he is proud of his sons and wife Nina, and that he's thankful for happiness that they've been granted.

"Justin's wild about (showing). Justin's a much more accomplished showman at his age than I was," James said.

He said his son, who also swims for his high school team and works out with the team five nights per week to prepare for meets, is dedicated.

When preparing for the showing season, James said that Justin will start working 15 weeks ahead of time, hosing down those to be shown, at the same time, day after day.

And the boys work with their animals with halters, with the same commitment, James said.

While the milking herd at Windy-Knoll View Farm beds on clay in freestalls and is fed ensilled forages and grains in the freestall bunk, they get hay in this excercise and pre-milking area bunk. The overhead chain conveyor allows square bales of hay to be transfered from the loft to the square drop-down chute in the middle of roof over the bunk.

On the right, the queen of Windy-Knoll View Farm herd, Ultimate Pala is part of the milking string and matron to about a third.

James Burdette checks on frozen semen.

"I think it really hit home to me when Nina saw Justin drag Kyle out (early on in the morning after school let out for the summer) and say, 'Come on, let's lead cows.'"

Last year, James said, Justin's big goal was going to Louisville, and he started on a program working toward it the first day of summer school vacation.

Currently all help with milking and chores. "I don't want to see (Justin or Kyle) milk every day, or Nina," James said. And even though it cuts into their income, Nina said they have hired help some times so that they get more time together as a family.

In 1992, the family took their big vacation, going as a family to the national Holstein convention. "It was the trip of a lifetime," James said, "10 days."

The Burdettes crossed north of the Mason-Dixon into Pennsylvania in the 1970s, having rented farms for a while in Maryland.

James grew up farming rental property, which was advantageous at that time. He said that living in Gaithersburg, a close drive to Washington D.C., there was a lot of land speculation for development and it was inexpensive to rent property for farming that was otherwise idle, waiting for future development.

But eventually, he said his family came to a point where the only rental agreements they could get for crop fields were for 30-day periods. When investing money into seed and fertilizer, and trying to feed cows, that kind of insecurity in assets is dangerous.

Nina's father originally had purchased the farm where they now live. He rented to them for several years and then they purchased it.

They didn't start with much, but with the luck that they've had, and commitment to seeing things through, and skill, they were able to come to where they are.

When the Burdette's moved to Pennsylvania, James had 19 Ayrshires and five recently purchased Holsteins, three of which were registered. After a while, the final few Ayrshires he had left he sold back to Ralph Shenk, from whom he had originally purchased his first Ayrshire.

Although the Ayrshires James had were well shaped and some had earned All-American honors, "I liked them, but I couldn't turn a dollar on them." He switched to Holsteins.

One of the first Holsteins he bought was a Crusader daughter and her first calf, the first one with the Windy-Knoll prefix, went Excellent.

Since then, he has had a number of Excellents. But, there is no photograph of her. "At the time, we didn't have the money for a professional photograph."

How they got Pala, the cow that they admit helped them find a sense of financial security, and enabled them to purchase an adjoining 100-acre farm in 1986, is a story similar to someone buying an art masterpiece at a flea market.

"We bought several cows off of the bottom (of a herd)," he said, two were Creek Bluff Elevation daughters. "One was classified 88 points and really good. She probably would have gone Excellent if scored a third time, but she got sick and died."

But Burdette had liked daughters of Ultimate, he said, adding that, though Ultimate didn't otherwise have strong breeding data, "Ultimate turned me on."

He bred those two Elevation daughters to Ultimate — one had lots of quality and went reserve All-American, and was second at the World Premier. He sold half interest to Lyle-Haven Farm. The other calf was Pala.

He showed her as a calf and she took first place as a yearling and first as a 2-year-old, and fourth at Harrisburg. He was offered money for her, but didn't take it. He said finances weren't quite as tight, and, at the time, milk prices were fair. "That's why I didn't sell," he said, smiling, adding that he is very glad he didn't.

Crop Disaster Funds Available

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — "Farmers suffering crop loss in 1994 due to adverse weather conditions may apply for emergency assistance at the local Farm Service Agency (FSA) office beginning Dec. 1," said Richard Troutman, acting chairman of the FSA committee.

President Clinton announced that more than $1 billion in emergency disaster aid is available.

Although many crops are producing record yields, abnormal weather patterns, causing excessive rainfall or drought have caused substantial crop losses in isolated but widespread areas in the nation. National production was not affected, but individual losses have been severe.

"The 1994 program is similar to those of recent years said Troutman. "Farmers with crop insurance who suffered crop losses greater than 35 percent (or 40 percent losses for those without crop insurance) will be eligible for a partial reimbursement."

CHESAPEAKE BAY PROGRAM
SIGN-UP
NORTHUMBERLAND COUNTY

The Northumberland County Conservation District is announcing a Chesapeake Bay Program (CBP) sign-up for all farmers interested in participating in the program. The Chesapeake Bay Financial Assistance Program provides cost share assistance for the installation of Best Management Practices (BMP's) to correct existing manure pollution and nutrient management problems.

The sign-up period will run from Monday, November 28 to Friday, December 16, 1994. Farmers can sign up at the Northumberland County Conservation District office southeast of Sunbury, off PA Route 890 on Plum Creek Road, 8:00 AM to 4:30 PM Monday through Friday. Farmers who signed up for the program in past years should call the district and indicate they are still interested. The State Conservation Commission at their October 3, 1994, meeting approved a revised Statement of Policy for the CBP that makes all of Northumberland County eligible.

Landowners determined eligible for assistance may receive 80% of the costs, up to $30,000, for installing BMP's to correct existing nutrient management problems, and must develop and follow a nutrient management plan which includes periodic soils and manure testing, and the possible installation of soil conservation practices.

For more information on the CBP you may call the conservation district office at 988-4224.

SCC Nutrient Advisory Board To Bring Pieces Together

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff
(part 2 of 2)

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The nutrient management advisory board to the State Conservation Commission has accomplished a majority of the work needed on 17 sub-issues of what is to be final regulations for nutrient management on farms.

The 15-member board has been charged with helping to create, review and recommend regulations that fulfill the requirements of the state's Nutrient Management Act, which was passed earlier this year by Gov. Robert Casey.

The expressed intent of the board is to do more than merely provide minimum regulations to satisfy the expressed requirements of the act. Instead, board members have agreed that the final base of regulations, especially for agriculture, must provide the environmental protections, but also not unduly burden farmers compelled to manage their handling of livestock manure.

As it is, the nutrient management act targets high-density livestock operations for mandatory controls of manure handling.

The threshhold for being considered a farm needing nutrient planning has been arbitrarily set in law as those operations with 2,000 pounds liveweight of livestock per acre, regardless of the number of animals.

In general, the basic intent of the act is to ensure that nitrogen is controlled so as to not present a pollution problem.

More specifically, the act deals with nitrogen used with livestock operations and in cropping operations associated with livestock operations.

Eventually, all nonpoint sources of nitrogen are to be considered for legal controls, but high-density livestock operations were chosen as first targets for control, since they are a relatively recent phenomenon in the industry, driven by low commodity prices and increasing production competition.

Furthermore, there have been some obvious pollution problems associated with such farming operations, and with large industry investment geared toward such high-production facilities, lawmakers sought to get controls in place before that type of new agricultural operation grew further without the required responsibility to not pollute.

Under state law, water pollution is illegal, but since the cost and impracticality of proving in court that a farm is responsible for pollution, even if it appears obvious, there has been little use of existing clean water laws to control such activities.

By requiring operators of high-density facilities to create and follow a management plan of nutrients (specifically nitrogen), it is assumed that the commonwealth can be better assured that illegal and irresponsible practices aren't being used in order gain a competitive edge or to increase profits.

As of the last meeting, held Nov. 4, the board has reported having taken final action on six of 17 regulatory "concepts."

Those concepts include regulations covering the general provisions of the act; some of the general requirements for submitting nutrient management plans and identifying CAOs; what is to be contained in the nutrient management plan; manure management; excess manure utilization; and the delegation of authority to local conservation districts.

Other aspects being worked on include definitions, storm water control; criteria for manure storage; and financial assistance. However, these areas still contain a lot of uncertainty and are under review by committees.

Other issues which are just being researched, or have yet to be addressed by the board include voluntary plans (which may require some rewording and reworking of regulations already considered to be finalized), manure handling in emergency conditions, plan amendments, and recordkeeping.

The advisory board has created several committees to deal specifically with the issues, and the committees have been meeting regularly between board meetings in order to have as much work accomplished as possible for full board consideration.

Joel Rotz, chairman of the board, said that the board must now begin to consider the workability of the final regulatory package. Mike Krempasky, secretary of the State Conservation Commission, said that some of the wording may change after legal review, so board members should not be surprised nor conclude that changes were made behind their back.

As reported last week, uncertainty about the extent of changes to the state Department of Environmental Resources as promised by Gov.-elect Tom Ridge in his campaign platform.

Overall, the board may find it necessary to request an extension of deadline to finalize regulations under the act, although members did not concede that such a request is imminent.

Penn State To Help Reintroduce Fishers

UNIVERSITY PARK (CENTRE Co.) — The fisher, a sleek member of the weasel family, is poised to roam the forests of Pennsylvania if a Penn State program to reintroduce the animals succeeds over the next several years.

The fisher project, which follows on the heels of a successful program to reintroduce the river otter into Pennsylvania, is likely to begin sometime in November, according to Thomas Serfass, a research associate in the School of Forest Resources who is overseeing the project.

As part of a cooperative effort between the Pennsylvania Game Commission and the university's Wildlife and Fisheries Science program, the project will release 25 to 30 fishers and track their movements and behavior over a year's time to determine how the animals will survive in Pennsylvania. If those fishers survive, the researchers hope to release more than 100 into the wild.

"This project is returning part of Pennsylvania's history," Serfass said. "There are more practical reasons as well, but bringing back a species that had disappeared from the state is reason enough."

Fishers, which are 30 to 45 inches long and can weigh from four to 12 pounds, were abundant in Canada and the northern United States in the early and mid-1800s. In the late 19th and early part of the 20th centuries, extensive logging along with unregulated trapping in the state destroyed much of the fisher's natural habitat and the species vanished from Pennsylvania.

"The main reason fishers disappeared was the loss of the forest" Serfass said. "That we are able once again to put fishers into Pennsylvania woods is a testament to modern forestry practices started during the past 100 years."

Despite its aquatic name, fishers don't like water much and don't eat fish. Serfass says their diet includes mice, shrews, squirrels and in the summer, nuts and berries..They will scavenge, eating deer gut piles and deer carcasses during hunting season. They also are one of the few predators of porcupines, which can be a timber nuisance in some areas.

Fishers are strictly forest animals and they have such a wide home range that Serfass estimates that a 50,000-acre forest could support just 100 fishers. "They really dislike open spaces and go out of their way to avoid them," he said. "People should not expect to see them in their backyard."

The fisher project, which is overseen by Dr. Robert Brooks, associate professor of wildlife ecology, and Dr. Walter Tzilkowski, associate professor of wildlife science, will use animals trapped live from populations in New York's Adirondacks Mountains and perhaps the White Mountains in New Hampshire.

Serfass said the fishers will be shipped to Penn state, where university veterinarians will examine the animals for disease or health problems. After two weeks, the fishers will be moved to a site in northern Pennsylvania where they will be outfitted with surgically implanted radio transmitters or radio collars. Graduate student Denise Mitcheltree will track each animal's movements and behavior.

"The radio study will tell us how they survive, what type of habitat serves them best and what they're eating," Serfass said.

"The fisher project is modeled very closely on Penn State's reintroduction of the river otter," Serfass said.

If the fishers prove hardy enough to survive in Pennsylvania's forests, Serfass estimates more than 100 animals will be released during the course of the project, which should take less than three years to complete.

"Since their range is so large, most of the fishers will live north of Interstate 80, where much of the state's older forest is," Serfass said. "Returning this native species to its original range is going to be exciting."

The project is partially funded by the Pennsylvania Wild Resource Conservation Fund and The Center for Rural Pennsylvania.

ABA Selects First Princess

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — Gwendolyn Murray of Toulon, Ill., recently won the first-ever Ayrshire Princess contest at the North American International Livestock Exposition in Louisville, Ky.

Murray has had a life-long involvement with Ayrshires, starting with the family herd of 35 Ayrshires and 35 Milking Shorthorns.

"I can't even remember when I started officially working with the breed," she laughed. "I do know I showed my first junior calf at the district show when I was five. "

An integral part of the contest was answering the question, "Why have you chosen to work with Ayrshires?"

Murray's response was simple, because of her family involvement. For her, the more pertinent question was why stay with Ayrshires?

"Ayrshires are efficient grazers, adaptable to change, hardy and easy to raise," she said. "They have excellent mammary systems, and produce high quantities of protein. Ayrshires also live longer and are affordable animals."

Her first official activity as Ayrshire princess was handing out ribbons and promoting the breed at the Southern National Ayrshire Show.

The other two judges, who came from other breed backgrounds, also agreed. They were: Janet Keitley Smith, a Kentucky Jersey breeder who has judged several previous contests for other breeds and Patti McDowell Holbert, a Guernsey breeder also from Kentucky.

First runner-up was Tami Swartz from Iowa and second runner up was Gretchen Greiwe from Sidney, Ohio. Other contestants included Amy Covey from Rose, Okla.; Marian Myatt from Mt. Hermon, Ky.; Karen Neville from Little Meadows, Pa.; and Jennifer Scoon from Downing, Mo.

Forest Fire Season Heats Up In Spring, Fall

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Forest fires riveted the attention of the nation this summer as wildfires ravaged huge sections of the western United States and killed 14 firefighters on Colorado's Storm King Mountain. For Pennsylvanians, however, the danger of fires is greatest in spring and fall, according to a Penn State forest fire expert.

"The conditions in the West are much drier in the summer, making it very easy to ignite the forest," said Todd Bowersox, professor of silviculture in the College of Agricultural Sciences. "In eastern forests, frequent rains and higher humidity keep the grass and trees from drying out."

The fall fire season is relatively short — from October to November — and Bowersox explains that fall fire risk is most severe after a very hot, dry summer. Following a wet summer, the forest leaves will not dry out enough to pose a severe threat.

"Most of the leaves drop from the trees by early November and the grass, ferns and other herbaceous plants usually will die after the first killing frost," Bowersox said. "As the fallen leaves and herbaceous vegetation dry out, the forest fills with a fuel that can burn."

Bowersox said that March, April, and May are the prime spring fire months, although the fire season varies across the state. "The southern part of the state will have an earlier fire season than the northern section," Bowersox said.

In spring, the days become longer and warmer, and as the snow melts, last fall's leaves and dead vegetation are revealed to the sun. The vegetation dries out as temperatures rise, usually aided by spring winds, which can be very strong and dry.

"Spring fires usually burn more vigorously and cover larger areas than fall fires," Bowersox said. "Under extreme drought conditions with high winds, we can get fires just as severe as those in the West."

For the most part, however, Pennsylvania fires primarily burn surface vegetation which results in flame heights of less than 10 feet. Such fires are easier to control and do not spread as easily.

Bowersox points out the key difference between Pennsylvania and western fires is that nine out of 10 Pennsylvania fires are started by people. Many western fires are started by lightning strikes.

"Pennsylvania really has the opportunity to control the number of fires each year," he said. "You should be able to control people better than you can control lightning."

The majority of fires started by people are ignited by burning trash and debris or by arson, Bowersox said. Such fires frequently start in rural areas, spreading from the backyard, through dead grass and weeds, into bordering woodlands.

"There is something about burning that fascinates people," Bowersox said. "Even if an area has garbage collection service, people will be out burning. They just like to play with fire."

Because national fire-prevention ad campaigns are geared toward summer, most Pennsylvanians are not reminded about fire safety during peak fire seasons.

Early in the morning or late in the evening on cool, moist days are the best times to burn debris. Bowersox emphasizes that most forest fires can be prevented by burning debris in a safe container (such as a burning barrel) with a fire screen.

"People burning with safe containers are definitely in the minority," Bowersox said.

New Facility To Aid Local Farmers

TOWSON, Md. — In an effort to assist the local farming community, Baltimore County government broke ground on a new building designed to provide local, federal and other agricultural services at a single site.

The Baltimore County Soil Conservation District, the federal Soil Conservation Service, and the federal Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service will be under one roof on Alms House Road when construction is completed in the summer of 1995.

Baltimore County Executive Roger B. Hayden attended the groundbreaking ceremony.

"This makes good sense in facilitating governmental accesp sibility for the farmers of Baltimore County," Hayden said at the groundbreaking. "A combined site benefits not only the agricultural community but the whole county."

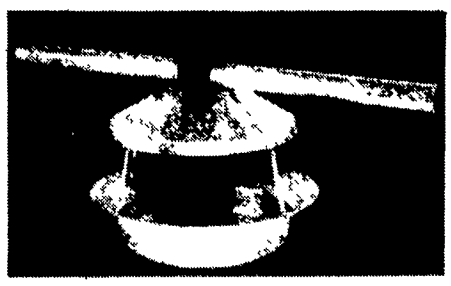
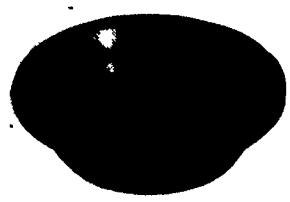
TURKEY PAN FEEDING SYSTEMS



SIMPLY THE LEADER

Cumberland continues being the leader in the manufacturing of poultry equipment by introducing a turkey feeding system for every application. Cumberland's Turkey Feeders have revolutionary features which make them both profitable and easy to maintain for the end customer. Cumberland Feeders deliver feed economically, efficiently, and dependably with savings for the grower. The Cumberland Turkey Pan Feeding System offers a poult turkey pan for young turkeys and two models of adult turkey pans, designed to withstand the rugged treatment of adult turkeys through grow-out.



NEW PLASTIC PAN

Easier to clean... non-corrosive... lighter. Cumberland's plastic pan for both STF and RTF Adult Pan Feeders features improved structural engineering with stronger support gussets, a more durable and effective "hanger" for cleaning and a unique set of two feed-saving "catch walls" that significantly reduce raking and billout.

The HI-LO Pan Feeder
A Two Stage Pan

The first 7-10 days of a broiler's life are critical The eating habits they develop then establish their growth pattern for life.

For these very young birds the Cumberland HI-LO Pan Feeder, resting on the house floor, presents a lip height of 2.1" (the average height of traditional "chick lids"). Because they can easily and safely get in and out of the pan, they're eating out of the pan from day one.

And because the pan needn't be "flooded," they're getting only fresh feed... and only as much as they need.

Then as the birds grow, and the feed line is raised, the Cumberland HI-LO Pan Feeder E-X-P-A-N-D-S into a 3.5" deep adult bird pan!

The higher wall and feed saver lip prevent waste from raking and billout... and cause the birds to eat nearer the outside edge of the pan, assuring a more even "first in, first out" utilization of feed (which also saves feed and maintains freshness).

Pennsylvania Lamb and Wool Queen Stephanie Bowman raises about 60 sheep on the family's Lehartsville farm. She grew up tending sheep and lamb is a staple on the family table. Stephanie has won many ribbons for her Dorset sheep and is named the 1994 Pennsylvania Dorset Breeders' Youth of the Year and the 1994 Outstanding 4-H Girl of the Reading Fair.

Meet The Pennsylvania Lamb And Wool Queen

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LENHARTSVILLE (Berks Co.) — The typical teen's diet is not lamb tacos, barbecued lamb steaks, and spicy lamb stir-fry. Neither does the typical teen's wardrobe consist of seven wool sweaters and classy wool suits. But Stephanie Bowman is out to change that.

As the Pennsylvania Lamb and Wool Queen, she practices what she preaches: Lamb tastes great — and wool is fashionable.

Lamb, raised from her own flock, is a dietary staple in the Bowman family. And, when it comes to purchasing clothes, Stephanie is always on the lookout for wool fashions. If she can't find them, she makes them.

People often compliment Stephanie whenever she wears one of her wool sweaters.

"Then I give my little spiel about wool and how it looks nice and comes in many different fashions," said Stephanie, who never loses an opportunity to speak in support of the wool industry.

"Many people aren't aware that wool isn't itchy to wear like it was years ago. And they don't realize how many different types of wool are available today," Stephanie said.

Stephanie, a petite whirlwind of energy, dabbles in numerous agricultural-related activities but zeroes her focus on lamb promotion.

The daughter of school teachers, Roger and Nancy Bowman, Stephanie said she learned early that she did not want to pursue a teaching degree. "I know all the problems," she emphasized the "all."

But Stephanie also learned what she does want to do from her parents.

"I grew up with a farming background and I definitely want to live on a farm, always," she said.

Her parents purchased their 20-acre farm before Stephanie was born. Even as a toddler, Stephanie followed her father around as he fed the sheep and gathered the eggs from the chickens.

They raised a few pigs and steers, but Stephanie tended to like the sheep best. Her brother Michael, who is 19, raises Corriedales.

When Stephanie was eight year old and old enough to join 4-H, Stephanie purchased her first Dorset lambs to intermingle with her father's crossbreed flock.

"I liked Dorsets because they look clean and are a good mother breed," Stephanie said.

Stephanie had a bit of an edge on other 4-H'ers because of her previous work with managing sheep on the family farm. But through 4-H, she learned to shear sheep and numerous other things.

"If it wasn't for 4-H, I wouldn't be where I am today," she said.

In addition to winning the queen title for the sheep industry, Stephanie also achieved the Youth of the Year Award from the Pennsylvania Dorset Breeders. This is given to the outstanding junior Dorset breeder in the state.

She has also received the Senior Shepherd Award in Berks County. This award is based on points achieved for sheep sheering, sheep placings at the fair, project book, fitting and showmanship, and a test on knowledge of the sheep industry.

This year, in addition to fitting and showmanship awards at the Reading Fair, Stephanie also was named the outstanding 4-H girl.

In addition to showing sheep at Allentown, Kimberton, Kutztown, Oley, and Reading fairs, Stephanie and her brother also show at state competition and enter fleeces from their sheep in the wool competition at Farm Show.

"We've done tremendously well," Stephanie said of first and second placings for both Dorset and Corriedale breeds.

Make-It-With-Wool and leadline competitions are another area where Stephanie excells. For years, she has been competing in the leadline competitions held at Reading Fair and the Keystone International Livestock Exibition. During leadline competition, competitors model wool outfits while leading a sheep around the show ring. Scores are based on the participant's skill in handling the animal and the appearance of both the shepherd and sheep.

One year, Stephanie placed in state competition in the Make-It-With-Wool contest.

"At first my mom sewed my outfits, but now I sew my own," Stephanie said.

She added that whenever she sews outfits for competitions, both she and her mother become frustrated and things get a bit stressful. In confidence, she confided that she considers herself a better seamstress than her mother — but not better than her grandmother.

"Seeing the finished product makes me feel really good," she said. Stephanie made a tailored suit for the queen competion, which she wore when crowned.

Before Stephanie was eligible to compete for the state Lamb and Wool Queen crown, she needed to achieve the crown for her county, which she did at the Reading Fair.

For the state competition, Stephanie needed to submit a resume, a lamb recipe, prepare a display promoting the industry, be interviewed before a panel of judges, and give a speech promoting the industry at the sheep arena during KILE. Stephanie was crowned during festivities during KILE.

The crown was something she desired for many years.

"Amy Eshelman was my model," Stephanie said. Amy was a former sheep exhibitor and queen for the industry several years ago. As far back as could be determined, Amy and Stephanie are the only Berks Countians to achieve the Pennsylvania Lamb and Wool Queen title.

Recently, three lambs from Stephanie's flock were processed and served at the Berks County Livestock Banquet.

"We eat a lot of lamb at our house," Stephanie said.

She's proud that she has been able to convince many skeptical friends to try a sample of lamb.

"Most people like it if they try it," Stephanie said. "I even got one lady who had always refused to eat lamb to try it, because she promised that if I won the state crown than she would eat lamb."

Especially popular with Stephanie's friends is lamb tacos, which may be prepared with any taco recipe simply by replacing beef with lamb.

Stephanie is a senior at Kutztown Area High School, where she takes college prep and ag courses.

As president of both chapter and county FFA, Stephanie is enthusiastic about her school's agricultural program.

"The numbers are really growing tremendously in the past few years," she said of the attendance enrollment in ag programs.

FFA and 4-H activities take up most of Stephanie's spare time. Since she was 11 years old, Stephanie has been part of the county's livestock judging team. One year the team placed first in the state. She has achieved Chapter and Star degrees and proficiency awards in FFA. Recently, she participated in the FFA leadership conference.

She plays piano, was in school chorus until last year, and participated in band until she was in tenth grade.

"Band kept conflicting with 4-H activities. I preferred 4-H so I dropped band," Stephanie said.

She also has gathered a bit of dairy goat care expertise. When friends who have dairy goats go away, Stephanie hand-milks and feeds the goats.

After high school graduation, Stephanie plans to study dairy and animal science at Penn State and minor in poultry technology and management. She has been accepted at main campus but may decide to go to the Berks campus the first year or two.

"I prefer to know my professors and have them know me," she said.

Because raising lamb is not very profitable, it needs to be more of a hobby than a money-raising project. Stephanie hopes to do her part

Use Holidays To Enjoy Friends, Strengthen Family Ties

UNIVERSITY PARK, (Centre Co.) — Many of us splurge over the holidays, not just on gifts, but on parties, decorations, cards and food. The result often is not only empty pockets but stress and exhaustion, said a family resource expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"We need to reevaluate what the holiday season means to us," said Dr. Marilyn Furry, associate professor of extension education. "The holidays should be a relaxing time to spend with family. This is something children need as much as adults do.

"Children should get some special attention during this time, but parents often are busy buying gifts, attending holiday parties, cleaning the house and decorating the tree," said Furry. "Too often, children end up spending time with a babysitter."

When holiday responsibilities aren't shared by the entire family, this diminishes the experience for everyone as well. "Many times it's the mother's responsibility to buy and wrap gifts, decorate the home, bake cookies and mail cards," said Furry. "Often she feels burned out before the holidays are even over."

Furry points out that families need to sit down together and set priorities for holiday activities — and share the work. "Make it a team effort, and do only as many things as you can accomplish comfortably," she said. "Congratulate yourself on what you've accomplished rather than agonizing about what you haven't done."

Holiday parties can be a great time to get together with friends— but too many parties can take time away from the family. "One way to avoid this is to refuse social invitations after a certain date, such as December 15, unless the event includes the whole family," Furry said.

It's also a good idea to set realistic expectations about gifts. This can save time as well as money. "Ask yourself if you really need to buy presents for everyone," said Furry. "Perhaps you could draw names with friends and relatives. Set a price limit for gifts, and have everyone agree in advance.

"Buy presents that will last or that can be recycled or repaired. Use your creativity to make gifts Capitalize on talents such as cooking, baking, sewing or wreath making. Another idea is to give a coupon book of favors to be redeemed throughout the year. Or make a donation in a loved one's name to a charity or church group."

Furry said that families also need strong holiday traditions to stabilize the unsettling holiday season. "These can be simple things the family does together, such as opening cards, taking a walk in the woods or calling friends. Include activities not centered around giving gifts, and do the same things each year so that the children can say, 'When do we make the wreath?' or 'When can we decorate the tree?'"

Furry also emphasizes an evenly paced holiday season. "From Thanksgiving on, and sometimes even earlier, the holidays receive a huge buildup," she said. "Then after Hanukkah and Christmas, the activities drop dramatically. Everyone feels let down, and the children are left surrounded by a stack of gifts, wondering what to do next.

"Instead, gradually wind down the holiday season," she said. "Don't take the decorations down immediately, and plan some of those get-togethers for after the holidays."

Meet The Pennsylvania Lamb And Wool Queen

in encouraging a greater market for lamb and for wool.

"I always dreamed of marrying a dairy farmer, but now I don't know if I want to get up that early to milk cows," Stephanie said.

One things she does know. She said, "I definitely want to live on a farm and have at least a few sheep."

Stephanie made the wool suit that she is wearing. She loves sewing for wool and makes a habit of wearing it as a walking advertisement of the industry.

Here are several of Stephanie's favorite lamb recipes.

SPICY LAMB STIR FRY

1 pound boneless lamb leg, cut into 3x1x¼ -inch strips
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1 tablespoon honey
1½ teaspoons minced fresh ginger root or ½ teaspoon ground ginger
2 garlic cloves, minced
¼ to ½ teaspoon crushed red pepper flakes
2 teaspoons cornstarch
1 tablespoon water
Non-stick vegetable oil cooking spray
1 tablespoon sesame oil or vegetable oil
4 cups vegetables*
Hot cooked rice (optional)

Combine first seven ingredients in medium bowl. Cover and refrigerate at least 2 hours.

In small bowl, blend water into cornstarch until smooth. Set aside.

Generously coat a heavy skillet or wok with cooking spray. Add oil and heat over high heat.

Add lamb with marinade and stir fry until lamb is no longer pink — 3 to 4 minutes. Transfer lamb to bowl using slotted spoon.

Add vegetables to skillet or wok. Reduce heat to medium-low. Cover and cook until vegetables are crisp-tender, 2 to 3 minutes.

Stir cornstarch mixture and add to skillet or wok. Stir and cook until sauce turns translucent, 30 to 60 seconds.

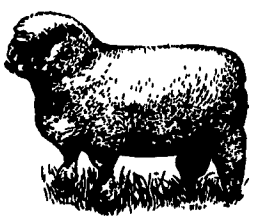
Return lamb to skillet or wok. Serve immediately over rice if desired.

* Suggested vegetables: sliced green onions, sliced mushrooms, julienne sliced red or green bell peppers, sliced zucchini or yellow squash, julienne carrots, sliced celery, trimmed snow peas, sliced water chestnuts, cauliflower or broccoli florets. For a quicker version, use a one-pound package of frozen vegetables.

MEXICAN BARBECUED LAMB STEAKS

3 lamb sirloin steaks or 6 shoulder chops
¼ cup finely chopped onion
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
¼ cup brown sugar
15-ounces tomato sauce
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
¼ teaspoon black pepper
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
¼ teaspoon hot sauce
4-ounces diced green chilies
½ teaspoon chili powder

Saute onion in oil until transparent. Add brown sugar, stir until melted. Add remaining ingredients; heat thoroughly. Brush on steaks or chops. Grill over moderate coals, basting chops frequently with sauce. Best cooked medium rare to medium.



Spinning wool and collecting sheep (indoors and outdoors) is a hobby Stephanie shares with her mother.

#16T CHERRY STONER

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Progress and production across the state go into a sort of temporary limbo this week as the state's most important season gets under way.

Harvest season. Harvest season, that is, for Pennsylvania's most well-known and widely-hunted big-game animal: the whitetail deer.

Opening day of "deer season" has always been one of the state's biggest holidays, ushering in a period of economic boon to those more wilderness areas of our Commonwealth where large concentrations of hunters converge. Friends from other states where deer hunting is pursued with slightly less-fervent buck fever always raise their eyebrows in surprise to learn that even many of our schools close for at least one day of observation.

Something like a million hunters usually head for the hills on opening day. That means miles of rugged mountain foot travel for many and more leisurely spying from the edge of a meadow woodlot or open fields for others. Not to mention those few hapless antler-pursuers who will spend some hours trudging in circles somewhere lost in mountaintop fog.

A million hunters equates to multi-millions of manhours of pre-hunt preparation. Hours spent gathering the boots and the gloves, the downfilled coats and the battery-charged handwarmers. Hours sighting in the rifles, stocking up on the ammunition, and accounting for details like a drag rope, blaze orange hat and change for the phone at the little general store to call home to explain how the buck got away and why it's necessary to stay at camp an extra day. (Or double checking that you have your phone credit card.)

Like all harvest crews, hunters may travel on their feet, but are fueled from their stomachs. Legendary are the tales of accomplished camp cooks, who send packs of hunters off into the early morning mountain darkness stuffed with stacks of pancakes, slabs of ham and bacon, gallons of hot coffee. At the end of the day, tables groaning with turkey or beef feasts and all the trimmings welcome them back, to rest weary legs and rehash the day's hunt.

The hunting "fuel" that's not talked about are the empty-calorie rations (junk food?) that most hunters haul along. I recall, as a kid, raiding Dad's leftover hunting foodstocks for goodies that survived the trip. And on those scattered years when The Farmer could slip away for a day or two, shirt-pocket residue and pickup truck litter provided obvious clues.

That such rations are among the most basic of hunting supplies was reinforced by statistical marketing data accumulated by our eldest during the few months she worked at a local convenience store. After everything else had been accumulated, hunters headed North made one final stop to round out their supplies of three basic necessities of mountain life: bottled propane gas, potato chips, and candy.

A cash register receipt I removed from the pickup after The Farmer returned from a single day of deer hunting a year ago further confirmed this data. Listed on the telltale slip of paper were purchases of soft drinks, potato chips, candy bars and a giant bag of M & M's.

More recently, after The Farmer's one day away for bowhunting, I again opened the pickup and found an empty M & M's bag tossed atop the stack of boots and insulated gear.

No wonder they return home lamenting the bucks that never showed or that vanished in the distance, teasing with just a mere glimpse of a bouncing white tail. The sound of all that crackling candy wrapping is a dead giveaway.

Extension Agent Has 25 Years

DAUPHIN (Dauphin Co.) — James E. Welshans, agriculture agent in Dauphin County, has been an extension educator in a variety of settings in his 25 years.

With the encouragement of the Clinton county agent, Welshans began his extension career with a two-month stint as 4-H summer assistant in Northumberland County, then moved to Clearfied County, where he spent the next 15 years working with 4-H youth and expanding into horticulture. in 1984 he transferred to Dauphin County to become the county extension director with program responsibilities in horticulture. Along the way he earned a master's in agriculture and extension education at Penn State.

On two occasions, Welshans taught extension education methods as part of the college programs in Swaziland and Zimbabwe. In 1994, after 10 years of heavy administrative duties, Welshans elected to return to full-time horticulture program work where he looks forward to expanding his program in urban horticulture and commerical vegetable production as well as developing an educational program for professionals who manage turf to create a safe environment in municipal parks and athletic fields.

Welshans said the thing he likes best about extension work is that every day is different, it is never the same. In commenting on the changes he has observed in the past 25 years, Welshans is amazed at evolving science and technology. Many of the basics he learned about plants as an undergraduate at Morehead State University have become obsolete as research and knowledge have increased.

Given the chance, he would choose the same work again because it has provided him with so many interesting opportunities such as the travel and work in Africa. "Some of my best friends work in extension. We help each other, they understand and it goes both ways. It's really neat," said Welshans. His greatest satisfactions have come as he helped new staff to develop into successful agents. Welshans' leadership and program excellence were recognized in 1993 when he received the Distinguished Service Award from the National Association of County Agricultural Agents. He served as President of the Pennsylvania Association of County Agricultural Agents 1993.

Jim and Jane, his wife of 27 years, live in Hummelstown. Sons Jeff and Joel are Penn State graduates. Daughter Jennifer is a freshman at Penn State majoring in agriculture business. For relaxation, Jim likes to work outside on his lawn and garden.

Using Holiday Leftovers

Some people love leftovers — warmed up and served just as they had been served originally. Other people hate leftovers, and it takes an ingenious cook to find ways to disguise them.

True, microwaves come to the rescue of cooks inundated with a refrigerator stuffed with a leftover holiday dinner. Food warmed up in the microwave tastes almost the same as the first time that it was served. But some finicky eaters deplore being served the same menu a few times in a row.

If it's good food, don't throw it away. Little leftovers and big ones fit into many dishes. Use vegetables in meat and vegetable pies, soup, stew, stuffed peppers, or smothered in a cheese sauce. Use cooked leafy vegetables chopped in creamed vegetables, soup, meat loaf, meat patties, omelet or souffle.

Leftover meat works fine in casserole dishes, hash, meat patties, meat pies, salads, sandwiches, and in stuffed vegetables.

Leftover bread will make excellent French toast, egg casseroles, bread toppings, or breading for fried foods.

Here are some recipes to use possible leftovers.

TURKEY SALAD BURRITOS

2 cups chopped cooked turkey
¾ cup finely chopped celery
½ cup finely chopped onion
¼ cup to ½ cup sliced black olives
1 cup shredded cheddar cheese
½ cup salad dressing or mayonnaise
½ cup piccante sauce
½ teaspoon salt
6 soft flour tortilla 7"-8" inches
Picante sauce
Black olives for garnish

In medium mixing bowl, combine turkey, celery, onion, black olives, and cheese.

In another bowl, whisk together mayonnaise, picante sauce, and salt; pour over turkey mixture, blend well.

Spoon fill tortillas, wrap burrito style; place in 13x9-inch baking dish. Heat in 350 degree oven for 20 minutes or in a microwave on high for 2 to 2½ minutes until thoroughly warmed. Garnish with black olives if desired.

Stir baking mix, milk, eggs, cheddar cheese and remaining parmesan cheese until blended. Pour over turkey mixture.

Bake 30 to 35 minutes or until gold brown. 8 to 10 servings.

Chocolate Almond Mini Tortes

Yield: 2 1/2 dozen

Chocolate and butter star in these bite-size tortes. They'll make a perfect gift for a chocolate lover

Tortes:
4 ounces bittersweet chocolate, broken into small pieces
1/2 teaspoon instant coffee powder
1/2 cup (1 stick) butter, at room temperature
2/3 cup sugar
3 eggs
1 cup finely ground almonds
1/4 cup fine, dry plain bread crumbs

Glaze:
4 ounces bittersweet chocolate, broken into small pieces
1/4 cup (1/2 stick) butter
2 teaspoons honey
Sliced or slivered almonds

Preheat oven to 375°F. For tortes, melt chocolate in top of double boiler over hot, not boiling, water. Stir in coffee powder. Remove from heat and cool slightly. In large mixing bowl, cream butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add melted chocolate mixture, almonds and bread crumbs, beating just until smooth. Divide batter among 24 paper lined mini-muffin cups (1 3/4 inch diameter). Bake 12 to 15 minutes or until a wooden pick inserted in center comes out clean. Cool slightly; remove tortes from pans and transfer to wire rack; cool 30 minutes.

For glaze, place chocolate, butter and honey in top of double boiler over hot, not boiling, water. Stir constantly 3 to 4 minutes or until smooth and shiny. Transfer to small bowl; cool about 10 minutes to thicken slightly. Spread about a teaspoon of glaze over top of each torte; top with almond slice.

Note: Tortes can be cooled, covered and refrigerated for 2 to 3 days. Bring to room temperature 30 minutes before serving. To freeze tortes, let cool completely in refrigerator, until glaze is set. Freeze in airtight container. Transfer to refrigerator the day before needed; bring to room temperature 30 minutes before serving.

Make "I Statements" Your Holiday Gift

Susan was really on top of the holiday chores this year—presents wrapped, decorations up and even the grocery shopping done—until the phone rang. Her plans had included going to her parents' house for the big holiday meal, and her mother's message turned everything upside down.

Her mom said, "I've been thinking of revamping the whole menu this year and your candied yam dish won't fit in after all..."

At this, Susan flew off the handle "What do you mean it won't fit in? Don't you like my yams? I have a good mind to tell Ted and the kids that we'll just stay home for the holidays!" She hung up before her mother could say another word.

This scene, or one like it, is all too common. We are now in the midst of the holiday seasons—a time when spirits are high and, unfortunately, tempers tend to flare. Vacations from work and school, holiday get-togethers and parties, and, often, too much of all the "good things" bring us into more contact with our family and friends and give us opportunities to communicate— or miscommunicate—how we feel.

Make an early resolution to do your part to communicate effectively. A good place to start improving communication is to look at it closely. Most people think that communicating is the same as speaking—in fact we so value speech that we have a spot in most baby books for "baby's first words." Really, though, good communication starts with listening not talking, so it might be better to record "baby first listened to..." According to Dr. Leo Bustad, Dean of Washington State University College of Veterinary Medicines

- 98% of what we learn we learn through our eyes and ears
- 70% of an average office work day is spent in communication
- this percentage is higher for students and the time breakdown for various types of communication is

9% writing
16% reading
30% speaking
45% listening

Good listening starts with good attitudes. First, we must have empathy for the speakers This means trying to understand (but not necessarily agreeing with) the thoughts, feelings and positions of the other person. Second, we must accept that the other person feels the way that they do. This again does not mean that we agree with their actions, ideas or values—only that we don't judge them and shut our ears to what they say. Third, we need to give the speaker some feedback to check that we understand them and to confirm that we were truly listening. If feedback is done with care and consideration of others, it is an important communication tool.

In giving feedback, try to remember to describe how you react to what has been said—without passing judgment. Tell the speaker what impact their message has on you, and give them a chance to decide to clarify, or change, what they have said. Do not force them to accept your ideas; use an "I" message, rather than a "you" message. "I" messages consist of three parts

- the idea or behavior that you have heard or seen
- the feeling you experience because of the idea/ behavior
- the visible effect of that feeling

In comparison, "you" messages make other people feel badly, and as if they must defend themselves. The "you" message is usually an order, command, blaming or name calling statement. They require that the speaker change, or use a solution for a problem.

Susan used a "you" message when she responded to the request to change the holiday menu. A better way to respond to her mother's words would have been, "When you suggested that I not bring the candied yams for the holidays, I was upset because I thought you didn't like my cooking and I wasn't sure what to bring."

Finally, allow the speaker to have a little silence; don't automatically jump in to fill the gap in a conversation; allow the speaker to collect her thoughts and feelings. Using the "I" message would have allowed Susan's mother to say, "It's not that I don't like the yams, but since your uncle has had the heart problems I'm trying to offer a low-fat meal. Maybe you could bring the relish tray I'm so fond of..." This conversation would have ended on a positive note, with Mom complimenting Susan's cooking. In turn, Susan would never have ended up threatening not to attend the celebration.

November or early December is a great time to add one more gift to the pile—one that costs a little time and effort, but no money—the gift of better communication. Listening and giving good feedback will make things go smoother, lessen stress, and make sure that the holiday spirit reigns. While it's certain that this gift to our family and friends can't be wrapped in shiny paper and won't be advertised on many TV commercials you'll find that good communication will be worth its weight in gold throughout the seasons and in the years to come.

Sounds Of Christmas

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Sounds of Christmas will fill the Hershey Museum on Sunday, December 4, at 2 p.m. The Lititz Moravian Trombone Choir will be in concert, performing traditional holiday music. A narration explaining the history of the Posqunenchore, or trombone choir, will accompany the performance.

These ensembles have roots dating back to the Middle Ages, when trombones were sounded from towers to announce important community events, as well as to warn of danger. As early as the 18th century, brass instruments were used in German Lutheran Churches. Moravians used trombone choirs as early as 1731.

The trombone was favored because of its tonal quality and its ability to produce a chromatic scale in the human range. The original choirs consisted solely of soprano, also, tenor, and base trombones, but in the 1890's, the Moravians finally admitted other brass instruments.

Currently, the Lititz Trombone Choir has about 40 members. The choir plays for all festival days, lovefeasts, communions, and deaths, as well as weddings and community concerts.

Christkindlmarkt will also be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission to the concert is free with Museum admission: adults $4; children (ages 3-15), $1.75.

PennDOT Offers Highway Signs For Farm Markets

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff advised operators of farmers' markets and roadside farm markets that they can promote their businesses through new tourist oriented directional signs to be erected on highways by the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation.

"This is a good opportunity for market operators to communicate with thousands of people who pass near their businesses every year," Wolff said.

"In many cases, tourists are visiting our state specifically to savor the sights and products of Pennsylvania agriculture. These new signs will help those tourists find the markets that offer quality Pennsylvania."

The large blue and white reflectorized signs will be erected by the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation on numbered traffic routes within five miles of the market.

"We're pleased to be able to help promote Pennsylvania's agribusiness community and the tourist industry," said Transportation Secretary Howard Yerusalim.

The signs will carry the name of the market, the approximate mileage from the sign, and an arrow pointing out the proper direction.

The Department of Transportation will charge a $100 application fee and erect six-foot by two-foot signs for $250 per sign. Smaller signs, four-foot by sixteen inches, can be erected for $200 per sign.

Farm markets must meet certain standards for hours, parking, and on-site tourist sign.

Information on the signs is available through any of PennDOT's 11 district offices.

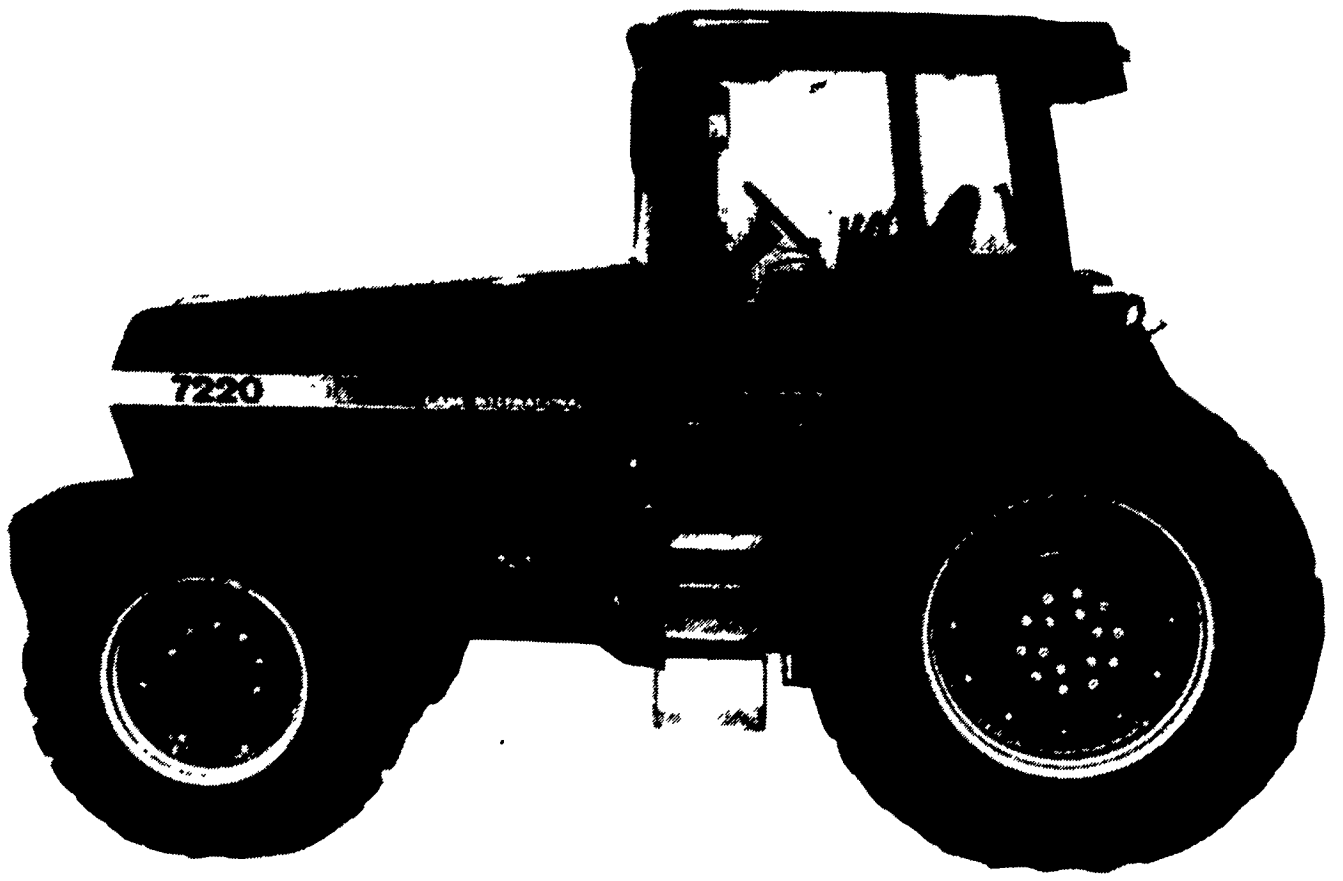
... And Now, The Encore



Eight years ago, the introduction of MAGNUM™ tractors set the new standard of performance for high horsepower row crop tractors. The new standard for power and control.The new standard for visibility and operator comfort. And the new standard for reliability and durability. Eight years of field-proven performance would be good enough for some.

But we weren't content to rest on our laurels — we listened as you told us what impressed you most about your MAGNUM tractor, and what you needed to take your own performance to the next level. Then we took the best and made it even better.

Now, with the introduction of the new 7200 Series MAGNUM tractors, the standard has just been raised. Smarter styling, improved engines, refined transmissions, better mechanical front drive, and more.

Why? Because when you tell us what you need, we listen. We hear you!

Activities With Bear Hugs

It's naptime and the children cry out, "Not yet. We want to play."

Or, it's time to put toys away and that means cleanup.

Or maybe it's meal or snack time, and the children are noisy.

A series of Bear Hugs books encourages children into a quiet restful mood, another gives ideas on how to turn cleanup time into fun time and meal time into happy times.

The 24-page books written by Patty Claycomb and illustrated by Marion Hopping Ekberg is designed for caregivers to help offer a positive approach when dealing with group behavior of young children.

Each book is full of ideas to put fun into teaching while getting desired results.

Here are some activities from the books. For more information on the books, which sell for $3.95 each, call 1-800-334-4769, ext. 244.

NOISY QUIET RHYME

Try this Bear Hug to encourage children to begin eating in a calm and happy manner.

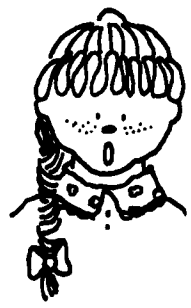
I can roar like a dinosaur.
(Roar)
I can stomp my feet.
(Stomp feet)
I can clap my hands.
(Clap hands)
I can sit in my seat.
(Sit very still in chair)

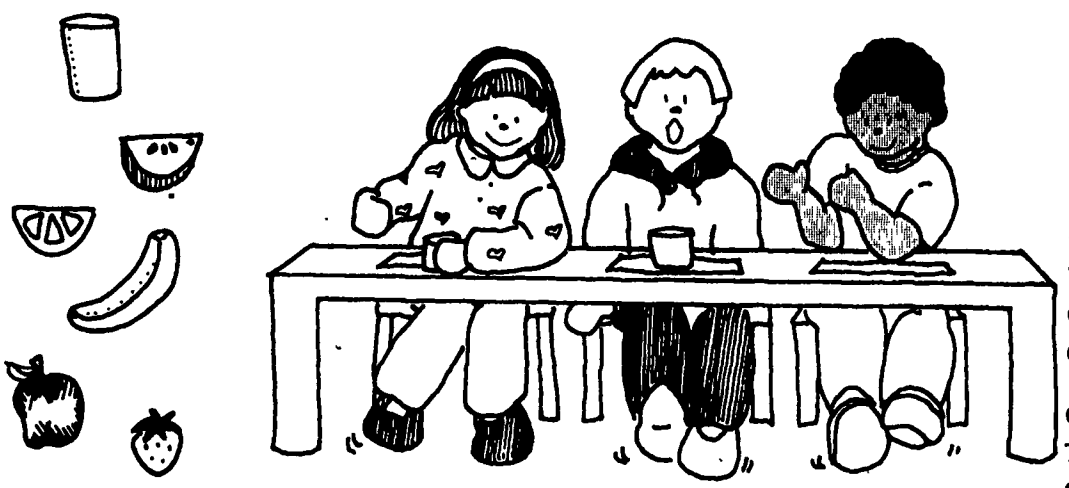
Tell the children that was the noisy part of the rhyme. Have them lower their voices while they say the final quiet verse.

I can roar in a whisper.
(Roar very quietly)

I can tap my feet.
(tap feet)
I can twiddle my fingers,
(Wiggle fingers)
Now I'm ready to eat.
(Place hands in lap)

Have children make up their own Noisy-Quiet Rhyme. Ask them to suggest four noisy actions and three quiet actions. Always end the rhyme with "Now I'm ready to eat." (Don't worry about words that rhyme. Results are what count).





THE HUNGRY RHYME

After the children are seated at the table, say the following rhyme as they act out the motions.

I am hungry and I want to eat,

(Rub tummy)

But am I ready for my treat?

First I'm going to check my feet

(Point to feet)

Two quiet mice, under my seat.

(Put feet under chair)

Now for my hands, they're quiet too,

(Hold up hands)

Just like the crocodiles in the zoo.

(Place hands on tabie)
There's a small buzz coming out of me,

(Buzz quietly)

My voice is as quiet as a bumblebee

(Hold finger to lips)

Now I'm ready, as you can see,

(Sit up straight in chair)

And hungry — as a bear can be!

(Rub tummy)

If the children need a reminder to be more quiet during the meal, ask questions such as these: "What should your feet be like? Are your hands quiet like crocodiles?"

Clean-a-Saurus

Use this Bear Hug to encourage cooperation and speed at cleanup time.

Tell the children the Clean-a-saurus would like to visit them today, but he will only come if the room is all cleaned up. Then sing the first five verses of the following song. When the room is all cleaned up, get out the toy dinosaur and make it dance around the room while you sing the last verse.

Sung to: "Kookaburra"

Clean-a-saurus is coming to our room today,
Hurry, let's clean so he'll want to stay.
Clean everybody, clean everybody,
Clean this mess away.

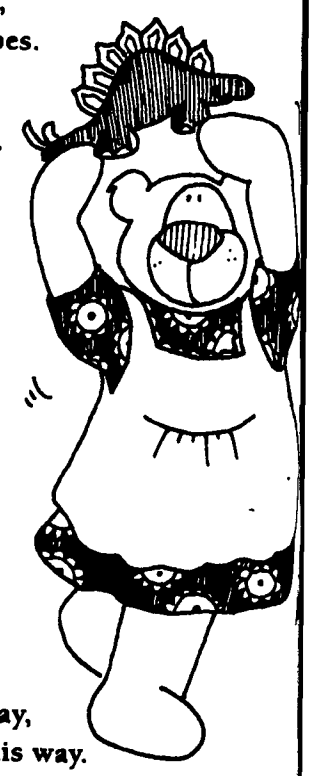
Clean-a-saurus has a great big nose,
He looks for messes wherever he goes.
Clean everybody, clean everybody,
Clean this mess away.

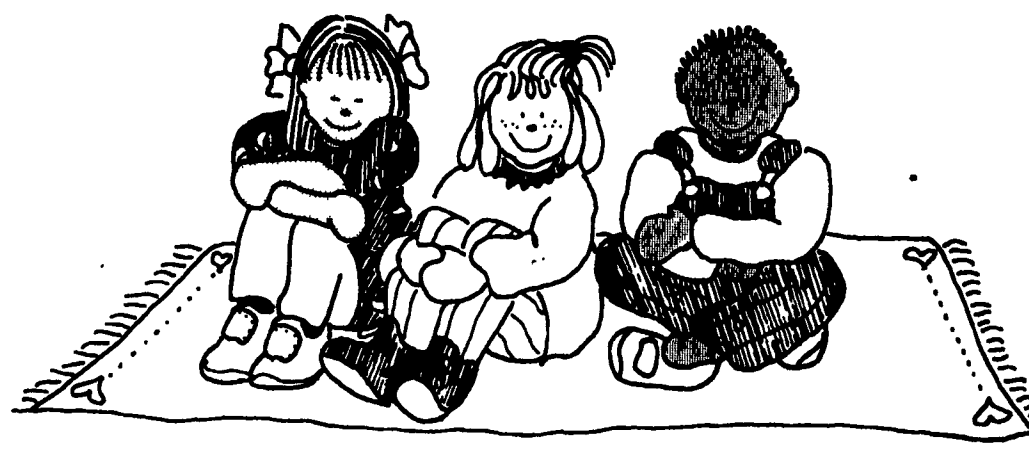
Clean-a-saurus has two big eyes,
That open when a mess he spies.
Clean everybody, clean everybody,
Clean this mess away.

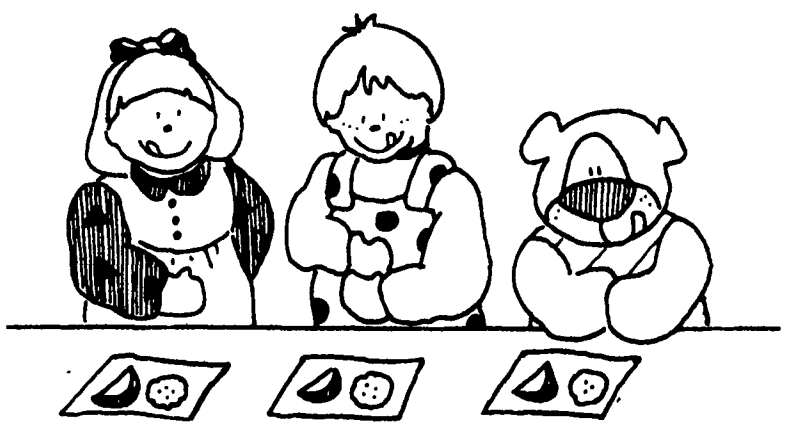
Clean-a-saurus has two big ears,
That perk up when a mess is near.
Clean everybody, clean everybody,
Clean this mess away.

Clean-a-saurus has giant hands,
To feel messes small or grand.
Clean everybody, clean everybody,
Clean this mess away.

Clean-a-saurus likes to dance and play,
Round the room when it's cleaned this way.
Thanks everybody, thanks everybody,
For cleaning up today.







THE BEAR CAVE

If your children are having trouble seeing what needs to be cleaned up, try this Bear Hug.

Ask the children to sit on the rug. Have them pretend that they are baby bear cubs and that you are the mama or papa bear. Then say the rhyme.

Now listen, my bear cubs,
I've something to say,
Our cave is a mess,
Let's clean it today.

Each one of you grab
A broom or a towel,
'Cause when I see a mess,
I just want to growl.

When everything's clean,
Come back to our rug,
And I'll give each of you
A "thank you" bear hug!

Have the children clean up the room. As they are working, walk around to check on the messes. When you seee a mess, stand by it and growl until some children come to clean it up. After thr room is clean, have the children come back to the rug and give each child who wants one a great big bear hug.

Consuming Thoughts

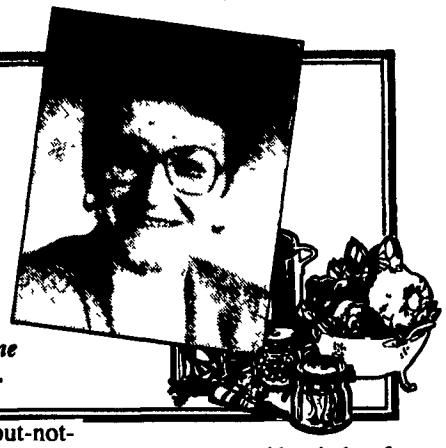
Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.



Want to make a sweet-but-not-sugary holiday treat? You can make low-sugar jellies to give as gifts from your kitchen. Just combine unsweetened bottled or frozen juices with commercial "lite" gelling products to create homemade jellies with little or no added sugar or with non-sugar sweeteners.

For good, safe results, follow gelling product instructions and recipes exactly. The correct balance of the gelling ingredient, sugar and fruit juice, is critical for a product that will "set up" and keep safely. Any change in method, ingredients or measurements will affect the set of the jelly. When the lite gelling product calls for sugar, the sugar helps preserve the product; mold inhibitors also enhance product storability.

Use only recipes that have been developed for the product. Don't try to adapt your own recipe or use one made for another product. Don't double the recipe; that's a basic rule with any jam, jelly or preserve recipe.

Flavor and texture of the reduced-sugar jellies depend on how much sugar is used. If you reduce the sugar measurement called for, the product will be too soft. Use only pure cane sugar—not honey or brown sugar or fructose. Not all lite gelling products can be used with non-sugar sweeteners, so check product labels and directions carefully.

Measure carefully and use standard measuring spoons for measures of less than one-quarter cup, standard dry measuring cups for sugar, and standard liquid measuring cups for fruit juice. Place the jars in warm water, bring to a boil, then let the jars stand at least 10 minutes.

When your lite jelly is done, resist temptation. To improve product consistency, let it set for several days before you use it.

How many calories you can save with these products depends on how much sugar is used. Those made with no sugar may have as few as five calories per tablespoon; those made with a third less sugar than a regular recipe may contain 20 calories per tablespoon.

These jellies won't match regular jelly in appearance, texture and flavor. A jelly made with no sugar at all probably will seem tart and bland. Jelly without sugar or with non-sugar sweeteners will be somewhat cloudy. The sugar in reduced-sugar products brings these jellies closer to the "ideal" in flavor, clarity and set. These lite jellies may "weep," especially after refrigeration, which also may make them firmer and harder to spread.

ADC Spouse Program Includes Easy Label-Reading Method And Cake Decorating

Julie Mayer, center, examines food labels with women in her group to determine if the item is a healthy choice.

The ADC spouse committee includes, from left, Arlene Wilbur, Evie Landis, Sue Crow, chairperson; Debi Hackett, Sandy Wilkes, and Joyce Uhland.

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Confused about the new food labels?

Perhaps you can read the labels but you're unsure of of the guidelines for determining if a high nutrient food is worth the calories.

During Atlantic Dairy Coooperative's annual meeting, Pat Kennedy, nutritionist with Dairy Council Inc., taught a session on Label-Ease.

It's a new method of evaluating a food by using your fingers on one hand to count the pros and cons of a product.

Sound confusing?

It isn't if you follow this easy method:

Raise a finger if the food has:
- 10 percent or more vitamin A
- 10 percent or more vitamin C
- 10 percent or more calcium
- 10 percent or more iron
- 10 percent or more protein
- 10 percent or more fiber

Lower a finger if the food has either:
- 10 per cent or more total fat
- 200 calories or more.

If any fingers remain up after this little test, the food is nutritious.

Perhaps that sounds a bit confusing at first, but if you try reading some labels from items in your cupboards, you will find it is quite easy.

At least that is what participants at the session found when they divided into groups to read labels.

"It's fast and simple. You become a smarter shopper when you use this method," Kennedy said.

When shopping, she advises being discreet about finger counting. You can hold your hand inside your pocket to count instead of holding up your fingers for other shoppers to see.

When using this method disreguard the bottom section of every label as this same information is on every label to list daily recommended amounts.

The middle section of the label is the place to concentrate for the good nutrients. This lists the nutrients for which many people do not consume enough. It is the part where you should start to finger count.

The top part lists the fat content or the negative aspects that result in lowering a finger when using the label-ease method.

Take a soft drink label. It has no fat, and no cholesterol, but neither does it have any food content. For its 168 calories, the beverage is not considered worthy of the calories.

This does not mean that you can never eat a food that isn't nutritious, but it does help determine if it is a good choice.

"There are 14 pieces of information on the new labels. You get a distorted picture if you look at only one part of the label," Kennedy said.

Nutrient dense foods means that a lot of nutrition is provided for the amount of calories. This can be determined by using this method of evaluating the food.

Although the new labels are much easier to read than the old ones, a drawback to the new labels is that it does not distinquish between natural and artificial sugar.

With this method, cereal is usually considered a nutritious choice. That is because most cereals are vitamin fortified.

Kennedy pointed out that cereal is not regulated as a food but as a drug because of its fortified vitamins.

Another aspect to consider when reading labels is to ask yourself if the food can be eaten as it is or is other food needed to make it an edible item?

For example, the label listing for a pancake mix must be read with the addition of eggs and milk if used. What use is powdered pancake mix?

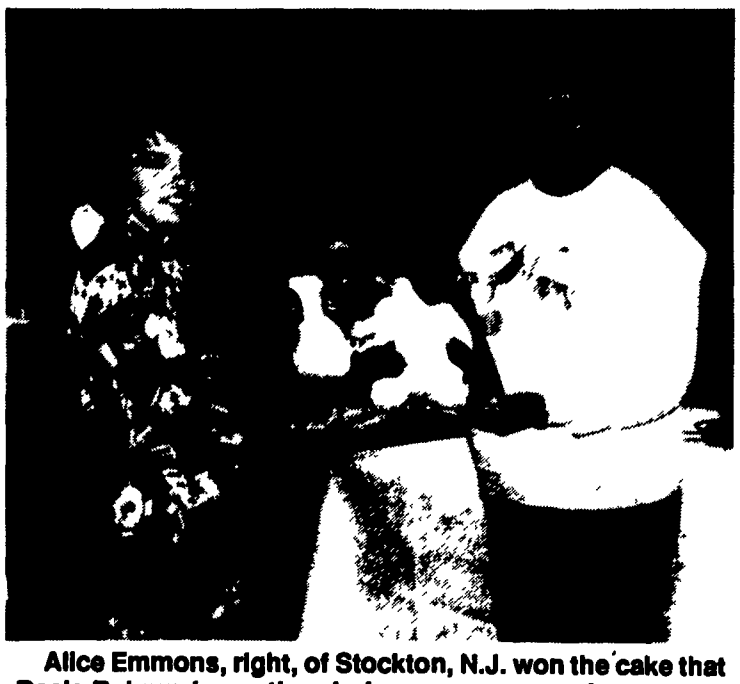
Another feature of the women's session was a demonstration on cake decorating.

Rosie's Creative Cakes

Farm wife Rosie Rohrer of Manheim demonstrated cake decorating during the spouse program at ADC.

Some fundamentals of cake making include the following:

- Always sift confectioners' sugar before using. The number of x's tells the number of times the sugar was presifted. For example 6-X sugar was sifted six times; 10-X sugar was sifted 10 times.
- Use pure cane sugar
- Butter gives a good flavor to frosting, but you cannot have a white frosting from it. The Crisco brand works best for frostings made with shortening.
- Add popcorn salt instead of regular table salt to frosting. Popcorn salt is finer and dissolves easily. Table salt gives icing "a case of the zits" shortly after a cake is frosted.
- Don't overbeat icing.
- To keep cakes from rising more in the middle than on the sides, take strips of terry cloth soaked in cold water and fasten around the outside of the cake pan while baking. The cloth will not burn.
- A item called a cake leveler is an easy way to trim a hump from the cake.
- Dap icing on the center of the board to keep the cake in position.
- When doing a layer cake, the centers should be put together since the bottoms of the cake are easier to frost.
- Icing consistency is the most important essential for successful cake decorating. The right consistency is learned through experience.
- Pressure control when decorating must not be too slow or icing will glob.
- Do not use liquid coloring in icing. Use paste or powdered colors.
- Pound cakes carve better and are easier to frost.



Alice Emmons, right, of Stockton, N.J. won the cake that Rosie Rohrer decorating during a spouse session at ADC.

TAKING TIME

The fall and winter months bring many families together for Thanksgiving, Kwaanza, Hanukkah, Christmas, and other holiday family reunions. These are times when families are celebrated, and yet many times this past week, I heard people lamenting—regretting that not everyone would be together this week or that they wouldn't be able to travel this year.

Staying connected with family even when you're physically miles apart is very important. I just commented to a friend that perhaps her sister-in-law was afraid that if everyone didn't gather for the meal that they weren't really "connected" and committed to being a family anymore. I believe that a family can be connected and committed to each other even when they are miles apart.

According to research, traditions and rituals help families maintain strong bonds. If you're feeling disconnected and want to strengthen the ties with family (or even special friends), here are some ideas to try.

You might make a ritual of calling members who are not present in the late afternoon or set aside time to write letters to people who are in different communities to share how you spent your day and to convey your hopes and holiday wishes with them. Assemble a letter writing kit with stationery, postcards, stamps, envelopes, return address labels, ink pads and stamps, stickers, etc. For one half hour, sit as a family and write to relatives. Each person selects a different person to write to. Young children can draw pictures. At the end of the letter, other family members can add a P.S. if they wish. These letters can be sent in advance and then read before the meal or opening of gifts.

Even though you may not be together, family members may agree to all serve a special menu item that has been a part of your past family gatherings. Or, send a piece of dinnerware, serving plate, or table decoration to a family member in another state. On the special days when you can't be together, you can celebrate your relationship by using the china, bread basket, or candlesticks. On some dinner tables, that will mean having quite a collection of unmatched items—each with a story. Your family can take time out from feasting to talk about the members who are "with you" through the memorabilia.

Another alternative is to tape record yourself reading a storybook and send the recording to a child or grandchild in another place. For an added treat, include the book so they can "read along."

Some families stay connected to "family" and to their heritage by participating in similar routines even though they are not in the same households. In my growing up family, keeping an advent calendar was an important family ritual. Now as an adult, I purchase calendars for all my siblings' families. Periodically, I check in with them to see how theirs is. Just knowing that each day they are opening a window like I am keeps me feeling connected.

Consider spending the afternoon doing one of those jobs that always gets put off—label photos and place them in albums. You can reminisce and sense your connections to family and friends (and get some work done, too).

These are just a few of the hundreds of ways that you can stay connected mentally and emotionally to family members when the holidays find you physically miles apart.

Holiday Decorating

Get in the holiday spirit by participating in the "Holiday Decorating Workshop", December 3, 1994 from 1:00 PM-3:00 PM at PECO Energy Company's Muddy Run Information Center. This is a family event where each can make and take a simple holiday craft decoration.

There will be candy ornaments, wreaths, swags, and additional natural items that can be made in one afternoon. A small fee may be charged for particular supplies, however, most ornaments will be free of charge. Participants can drop in anytime between 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. at the Muddy Run Information Center.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

It is difficult to realize that winter will soon be here as we've had many nice warm days lately.

I've gathered some unusual red berries and some dark blue berries to use in dried arrangements. Then I try to put a name to them as I look through a guide to North American trees. We have several small oak and maple trees in our lawn and I hunt a name for them too. It was surprising to learn that the correct name for what I call 'Mimosa-tree" is really "Silk-tree." Sometimes it is also called "Powderpuff-tree."

Our Spirea has been pruned and we've transplanted some small evergreen trees. Even an Eastern Redbud or "Judas-tree" has been transplanted and I hope that it grows as the flowers are a beautiful purplish-pink.

Recently we had a dinner party planned, but an hour before serving time, we got a cancellation. As I had already set the table and cooked for four couples, I decided to try and find a replacement. A number of people were not home but I did manage to invite a neighbor who kindly filled in for the absent couple. We all had a wonderful evening of pleasant conversation. Most of the couples had traveled a lot and even entertained Russians and Japanese in their home. The language barrier can be a real problem.

Our youngest grandchild will soon be one year old. He is a chubby 25 pound redhead and is very pleasant. He has practically grown up in an express wagon. For many months he sat in the barn and watched the stainless steel feed mixer go round and round. When he gets restless, my husband pulls him around for a bit. Little Gregory is growing up so fast that he makes me contemplate just how fast time passes.

Avoid Shopping Stress, Fatigue

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The holiday shopping season is in full swing. And unless you are one of those early bird shoppers who purchase all their gifts before Thanksgiving, you probably will be facing large crowds and long hours as you navigate the store aisles in search of that perfect present.

But by following a few simple tips, you can ease the shopping burden, said a family resource education specialist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Holiday shopping can be very stressful," said Dr. Marilyn Furry, associate professor of extension education. "So you should take some precautions to make shopping trips less tiring and more fun."

First, Furry said, you should have gift ideas in mind before heading to the store. Use catalogs, magazines and newspapers for help. Listen for hints from people on your list. "Browsing in crowded stores for gift ideas is a sure way to wear yourself to a frazzle," she said.

Next, organize your shopping list. Write down names, gift ideas, sizes, maximum dollar amount for each gift and other information you need to avoid duplication or leaving anyone out.

Furry recommends shopping when stores are least crowded. "If possible, go right after opening time or during the post-lunchtime slump between 2:30 and 5," she said. "Avoid lunch hours, weekends, and evenings."

Shop for short periods of time, said Furry. Choose time blocks of two or three hours when you are not tired and the stores are least crowded.

And if you are seeking last-minute gifts, avoid the crunch by shopping at smaller or specialty stores. "Hardware, book and music, and even grocery stores can provide a wide selection of appropriate, serviceable gifts," said Furry.

If the crowds and traffic are too much to handle, consider shopping at home. "Many mail-order catalog companies have 24-hour toll-free numbers, and offer overnight or priority shipping," Furry said. "But mail-order shopping is not risk-free, so be sure to use sound buying techniques."

Furry offers the following tips for mail-order buying:

- Use well-known, established companies. Check the October 1994 Consumer Reports if you are unsure which companies offer the best merchandise or service.
- Read product descriptions carefully.
- Know the company's return policy.
- Make sure the company can offer timely shipping so the gift arrives before the holidays.
- Ask about shipping costs and payment options so there are no surprises.

IFYE To Sweden

Hello from Sweden! Things are going very well and I only have 1 month until I'll be back home in Adams County.

I'd like to share with you some observations on how the Swedish culture is different. These are a few things that I've noticed in the past three months:

1. Always remove your shoes as soon as you enter a building. Even in the first through sixth grade at school, the students remove their shoes.

2. You greet someone with "Hej" (pronounced Hay). You leave with "Hej, Hej" or "Hej då" (hay doe).

3. When eating, place the fork in left hand. Hold it like a piece of chalk with the prongs down. Place the knife in the right hand, held the same way or like a pencil. Switch hands if you're right-handed.

4. Use a big spoon or tablespoon for cereal, soup, and some desserts. Use a very small spoon for most desserts and with coffee or tea. Our "teaspoon" doesn't exist in Sweden.

5. You are thought to be "crazy" or "weird" if you don't drink coffee. I drink tea and I'm looked at strange every time! Swedish coffee is very strong and they call American coffee "brown water"!

6. Milk and their "special" breakfast milks come in 1 liter cardboard containers. You have to buy 4 to 6 liters every 2 or 3 days, depending on the size of the family.

7. Gasoline prices are about $4 per gallon. You actually pay about $1 per liter. (4 liter=1 gallon)

8. Swedish children have it very easy (go to school, watch TV). You may only have to help if you live on a farm. Your parents can't punish you (physically or by grounding or other means).

9. Driving age is 18, but you can practice with a parent at age 16.

10. The legal age for drinking alcohol is 18. At age 20 you can buy alcohol over the counter.

11. Every male must spend one year serving in the military.

I have also experienced some traditions while I've been here. The few I'll mention are traditional for a certain part of the country.

1. Moving porridge—A thick, white rice dish served with sugar, cinnamon, and milk. A friend makes this for someone who has moved to a new apartment or house. It is also served at Christmas.

2. "Birthday Bash"—That's what I call it. A large group of friends arrive at the birthday person's house at strange hours of the night. Most common is 5 a.m., so people can go to work afterwards. You awaken a birthday "girl" with rifle shots, one per 10 years; the birthday "boys" with one each year. This is only done on the "Big Ones"—30, 40, 50... After the person rises and comes to the door, you sing a traditional song and move into the house. The birthday person then makes coffee and sometimes sandwiches for everyone. In the evening, they usually have a party too.

3. Sur Ströming—sour herring. It is the worst smelling fish I have ever come in contact with. I couldn't try it along with many Swedes. It's usually eaten in the summer.

That is some of what I've seen. The Swedes aren't that different from Americans. I'll soon be moving to the southern part of Sweden—different landscape and language. Until next time, Jacki.

Volunteers Make Compost Happen

COLLEGEVILLE (Montgomery Co.) — On Saturday, Nov. 5, a group of volunteers transformed a grassy area behind the Upper Dublin Township building (801 Loch Alsh Avenue) into the county's third compost demonstration park.

The park, built by newly trained Master Composters, shows working examples of compost bins you can make or buy. The Master Composters filled the bins with yard materials such as leaves and grass and will manage the compost piles so that the public can see composting the action. Anyone interesed in learning about backyard composting is encouraged to visit the park.

The park offers a self-guided tour of compost bins and the compost process. Next to each demonstration bin are signs which explain how to build the bins. A mailbox marked "Information" holds fliers about bin construction and a brochure on the how-to's of composting.

The Master Composter training and park construction were organized by the Recycling Education Program of Montgomery County Cooperative Extension. This program promotes backyard composting as well as larger scale composting for landscapers, farmers, and other commercial recyclers.

Partial funding for the construction of the park was provided by a generous grant from the Montgomery County Commissioners. in addition, local merchants donated construction supplies for the park.

Two other compost parks have been built in other parts of the county, one in Schwenksville behind the headquarters of the Perkiomen Valley Watershed Association (Route 73, across from Pennypacker Mills Park) and the other in front of the New Hanover Township building (Route 663 just north of Swamp Pike). Both are open to the public and offer the same information.

If you would like to be sent a brochure on home composting and/or plans for building your own compost bin, write to the Recycling Education Program, Montgomery County Cooperative Extension, 1015 Bridge Road, Suite H, Collegeville, PA 19426-1179.

FFA Happenings

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—For the 28th consecutive year, the National FFA Foundation has set a record level of support for FFA and agricultural education programs. At the 67th National FFA Convention, Ron Davis announced that a total of $5,857,000 was raised in 1994 to support projects and programs for FFA and agricultural education, a 7.5 percent increase from 1993. A crowd of more than 32,000 FFA members and guests cheered the announcement.

Davis serves as the 1994 FFA Foundation Sponsors' Board chairman, and is president and chief executive officer of Biggs/Gilmore Communications. Davis sees the contributions of the more than 1,000 Foundation sponsors as an investment in the future. "American agriculture counts on the FFA to provide the leaders of tomorrow. For that reason alone, those of us who work in this industry can make no wiser expenditure than to support this fine organization," he said.

Davis introduced the 1995 FFA Foundation Sponsors' Board chairman, H. D. "Harry" Cleberg, who is president and chief executive officer of Farmland Industries, Inc. Cleberg announced the 1995 Foundation theme, "FFA—Investing in Tomorrow's Leaders."

Since 1944, the National FFA Foundation has provided more than $57 million to FFA members for awards, scholarships and achievement programs.

You Ask ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? You Answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know whom to ask for the answers.

"You Ask — You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask — You Answer, Lou Ann Good, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522.

QUESTION — Carl Humer, 4745 Carlisle Rd., Dover, Pa. 17315 is trying to locate a company that sells the machine to produce firewood from logs. He understands that you place a full length log on the table, a series of saws come down or out and cut the logs to length. You thne move the log to the splitter area and the machine splits the logs into cord wood. Humer would prefer to see the machine in operation if anyone has one to sell.

QUESTION — Evelyn Michaels, Beaver, asks if anyone remembers Ole Oid, a type of linament made by Dr. Peter Farhney and Sons Company in N.Y. City. It contained camphor, oil of cloves, sassafras, and turpentine. The Swedish/ Finnish community in Tioga County used it widely from the 1930s to the 1960s. Evelyn has asked telephone operators in the calling areas 212, 718, 917, and 914, for telephone listings for the company but no listing exists in those ares. Does anyone know a supplier?

QUESTION — Evan Weidman, Westfield, would like to buy a cornplanter like the Amish use. He wants to know if he can plant green beans with the same corn planter or does he need different plates for it. If so, where can he get them?

QUESTION — A reader would like to know where solar powered window candles may be found. Is there such a product?

QUESTION — E.M.L. of Phoenixville would like to know where I could find a thimble with John Deere marked on the side to add to a collection.

QUESTION — A Lehighton reader writes that she has a poinsettia plant with some problems. After it bloomed, she cut it back and new green leaves appeared, but now some of the leaves turned yellow and are falling off. Some leaves have white on them that look like mold. Is there an organic way to solve this problem?

QUESTION — Bob of Bob's Radiator Repair in Woodstown, N.J., writes that his daughter is collecting wood items called Woody Woodpecker. She has a few pieces such as a knife holder, canister set, and wax paper holder. She would like to know how many pieces are in the whole set and what each piece is named.

QUESTION — E. Otis Dyer, Rehoboth, Mass., would like to know the name of the company in Pennsylvania, the address, and if the company is still in business — the one that makes a farm fence kit consisting of two channel irons and hinges. The farmer supplies the wooden cross piece measuring 2x8-inches and barbwire strands.

ANSWER — Nelson Austin, Shinglehouse, has black walnut trees, but he cannot get the nuts to dry without them molding. Thanks to George Love, Watsontown, for the following comments: Do not try to dry walnuts without first removing the hulls or shucks as he calls them. A good way to hull walnuts if you have a lot of them is to lay them in the driveway and run over them with the auto or pickup truck. If you don't have too many walnuts, you can remove the hulls by stomping on them with your feet. Pick up the walnuts without the hulls and spread them on the attic floor or in a dry place to dry. Spread the nuts apart so they dry without molding within a few weeks. The walnuts may be a bit soft in the shells but after a few months, the walnuts will be firm.

ANSWER — A reader from Manheim wanted to know where to purchase a blackboard that is about 3x2-feet. Thanks to Claude Motter, who writes that he has all sizes of blackboard from a school. Write to him at Cannon Range Rd., Vineland, N.J. 08360 or call (609) 692-1031. Thanks to another writer who wrote that he has blackboards in various sizes. Write to Capozzolo Bros. Slate Co., Box 1343, R.D. 1, Bangor, PA 18013 or call (610) 588-7702. Also, a reader from Lancaster County has one for sale. Call (717) 529-6917 for details.

2 FFA Chapters Honod

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Two dynamic FFA chapters, judged best in the nation for their stream conservation efforts, have received $3,000 and $2,000 scholarship grants through their partiaipation in FFA's Operation Green Stripe program.

The Mid Prairie Chapter of Wellman, Iowa, won the top award, and the Carlinville, Ill., chapter was runner-up. More than 200 FFA chapters in 16 states were eligible to compete for the award, which recognizes efforts to protect streams from sedimetation.

The grants were presented at the National FFA Convention by Monsanto Co., sponsor of the program with several seed companies nationwide.

Through Operation Green Stripe, FFA members recruit farmers to establish grassy buffer stripes between farm fields and streams. Monsanto pays the chapter $100 for each farmer recruited -- up to five -- and the participating seed company donates free grass seed to the farmers. The FS Division of Growmark contributed seed for the Iowa and Illinois winners.

Research has shown that buffer stripes can filter out most of the soil particles that would otherwise reach streams during storm runoff.

The "Best in Nation" award was established to recognize chapters that went beyond the basic requirements for participation in Operation Green Stripe, according to Tom Hoogheem, environmental field services director for Monsanto.

"We were looking for chapters that really turned this into an educational experience, not just for the FFA students, but for the community as well," Hoogheem said. "Farmers are doing a lot to protect the environment, and these young people have done a lot to show others what can be done. We're salutng these students, but they know that they are sharing credit with the farmers who devoted a portion of their fields to protect stream quality."

The Mid Prairie Chapter received the top honor for its successful participation two years in a row under the leadership of Chapter Advisor Neil Knobloch. Fifteen green stripes were planted over the two-year period, and the educational efforts of the chapter were outstanding, Hoogheem said.

The chapter hosted a statewide field day for agribusiness, conservation and political leaders and demonstrated the concept in festivals, state and local fairs and farming expos throughout the state.

"They developed a miniature model to show visitors to their booth what happens to soil if you don't check the erosion," Hoogheem said. "They poured water over a bare miniature field and one that had a grassy buffer strip. They collected the runoff in jars. The comparison made for very effective communication."

The chapter also enhanced the Operation Green Stripe concept by developing a program called Contour Buffer Strips with the county Soil Conservation Service and Pheasants Forever. That program encourages farmers to add a futher soil conservation dimension by breaking up the contour of their fields.

The Carlinville, Ill., chapter impressed through sheer numbers by planting 61 green stripes.

"This was a tremendous effort," Hoogheem said. "We haven't figured out how many miles of streambank were protected because of this one chapter, but I'm sure it was substantial."

The chaper, under the leadership of Adviser George Kellner, also hosted a statewide field day. Hoogheem said they emphasized the wildlife benefits of green stripes by building boxes to raise quail.

"These two chapters were judged the best from a lot of excellent entries," Hoogheem said. He cited a few other examples:

In Firth, Neb., the chapter had an Operation Green Stripe float in a local parade. They also helped host a field day attended by Gov. Ben Nelson.

In Filley, Neb., the chapter invited local groups out to see the green stripes they planted.

In Truman, Minn., the chapter succeeded in planting both sides of a ditch that drains thousands of acres of farmland in an area that includes a wetland used by ducks. They also established a settling pond for sedimentation to stop it before it moves to main creek that carries ditch water away.

In Monona, Iowa, the chapter used its green stripe money to invest in other enviromental experiments such as greenhouses and composting.

In Elmira, N.Y., the chapter cleared tires and debris from an old canal. In addition to the green stripe, they established a bike path.

In LaBelle, Mo., the chapter protected a lake that provides the town's drinking water. They also established an outdoor classroom in a nature area they created.

Hoogheem said the results of this year's program have attracted the attention of organizations such as Soil Conservation Service, Pheasants Forever, Quail Unlimited, Trout Unlimited, and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

"They recognize the tremendous benefit that is realized from planting buffer stripes," Hoogheem said. "They also recognized that farmers are doing this on their own, without government oversight. We are looking forward to making even greater strides next year, with the cooperation of those organizations, FFA, the seed partners, and of course the farmers."

Other cooperating seed companies are CENX/Land O' Lakes, Farmland Industries, MFA, Countrymark, Agway, Terra and Southern States.

Toy Candy

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — A sweet Christmas tradition will be demonstrated on Sunday, December 4, from 12 noon to 4 p.m. Nancy Fasolt of the Cake and Kandy Emporium in East Petersburg will demonstrate Clear Toy Candymaking. Clear Toys are made with only sugar, water, corn syrup, and yellow, red, or green coloring.

Children often played with the candies, which is why they are called "toys." They also hung the crystal-clear shapes on the tree as ornaments. These were the precursors to modern glass ornaments.

Christkindlmarkt will also be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. The Clear Toy Demonstration is free with Museum admission: adults $4; children (ages 3-15), $1.75.

FFA HAPPENINGS

Earning To Live

The Agricultural Science Laboratory Class of the Elizabethtown Area High School has formed a working company. This student owned and operated company was developed to teach the students how to begin a business and market products.

The Elizabethtown FFA owns beehives at Bear Creek Farm. One of the by-products of bee production is excess beeswax. The students wanted to explore the possibility if there was a market for beeswax. Since a large portion of excess beeswax is marketed through beeswax candles the Bear Creek Farm Company was formed.

The class was divided into three groups—management, production, and marketing. The first step was to create a survey to determine if there was a market for beeswax candles. The survey asked potential customers on their candle buying habits. the price they normally pay for a pair of candles, and in what popular colors.

The production group went to work manufacturing 8 inch candles from 8 inch by 16 inch beeswax sheets. The colors of the candles where determined by the survey as navy, teal, ivory, and wine. The management group kept all records, handled finances, and all other records necessary for a business.

The marketing group's responsibility was primarily in sales, advertisement, and display. As a result of this minicompany operation, 80 pairs of candles were sold to faculty and staff members.

A guest speaker from the Country Haus in Elizabethtown addressed the class on the first hand experience of owning and operating your own business. Later, the class toured the Country Haus to better understand pricing and display.

As a result of this exploratory company, the Elizabethtown FFA will be marketing beeswax candles during their 1995 holiday sales campaign. This "doing to learn" project enables all students in the class to be more aware of all areas of starting your own business.

Sheepberry Farms

HALIFAX (Dauphin Co.) — John and Lynn Zerphey, owners of Sheepberry Farms, Halifax, took a second look at a white Border Leicester ram lamb a few months after his birth in June 1993.

Rampart, as he was named, was among a group of market lambs to be sold. The overall conformation and wool quality was evident at this early age and the Zerpheys decided to keep him as a possible breeding ram.

The decision to keep the white Border Leicester ram was later confirmed at the York Interstate Fair, where Rampart's fleece received three ribbons, first place, champion white fleece, and reserve grand champion of the fleece show.

The Zerphey's also showed wool at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition, held at the Farm Show Complex in October. Fleeces from any state of the United States can be exhibited at the Keystone show. Rampart received a second place award. The Zerpheys were pleased, considering the competition.

Between the two fleece shows, The York Interstate Fair and The Keystone International Livestock Exposition, Sheepberry Farms received a total of 23 ribbons - Six first place, seven second place, three third place, one fourth, three fifth, and one sixth place award, plus a champion rosette ribbon and reserve champion ribbon.

The harsh long winter of 1993-1994 put some extra stress on the wool. Having to feed the sheep in the barn for those long weeks of drifting snow and ice resulted in more hay in the fleeces than usual.

Overall, the Zerpheys are pleased with their showing and very proud of Rampart. They are looking forward to his offspring, due in May 1995, and they hope for some future wool champions among the lambs, too.

FFA Convention Fills Expanded Conference Center

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—FFA members from throughout the nation were in Kansas City recently to attend the 67th annual National FFA Convention.

An estimated record attendance of 32,000 "blue jackets" and guests participated in the world's largest annual student gathering. National competitive events, leadership seminars, educational tours, and inspirational presentations from nationally known speakers highlighted the list of activities for students.

Additionally, the 1994 national FFA convention is highlighted by the grand opening of the newly expanded Bartle Hall. FFA is the first group to completely use and fill the new facility "wall-to-wall," providing for the largest ever National Agricultural Career Show.

The Career Show combines the most diverse set of activities ever housed in Bartle, featuring 284 exhibitors—an increase of 32 percent over last year. Hundreds of exhibits from across the United States highlighted the show.

An exhibit from NASA, covering 20 booths, is a walk-through display which helps answer the question of how NASA's research impacts agriculture. The display features a sample of the moon rock returned to Earth via Apollo Missions. There are three sections of the display: one housing photographs of technology and a video of the current Atlantis mission in space, narrated by Hugh Downs. The second contains a small portion of a Space Station and the third is a futuristic example to give visitors a feel for what life might be like on Mars.

An aquaculture display of three tanks totaling 650 gallons of water is also available for viewing. This teaching tool, which runs on less energy than one light bulb, focuses on aquaculture, water quality and agriscience. The tanks can support 200 pounds and can include catfish, trout, minnows or snails.

An FFA Chevy Alumni truck was auctioned in connection with the FFA Alumni Convention. Bill Borer from Grand Rapids, Ohio, purchased it for $23,200. A new 4020 John Deere tractor from John Deere Credit was also given away.

A huge shopping mall designed for FFA members, featuring 17 stores, with items ranging from cowboy boots to sweatshirts and stuffed animals was also added along with the new additions to Bartle Hall.

A food court of nationally known chains including Taco Bell, Dairy Queen, Godfather's Pizza, LaMar's Donuts, Kentucky Fried Chicken, Subway, Robinson's Catering and a state-of-the-art McDonald's kitchen designed specifically for the FFA convention sold meals to FFA members. McDonald's has installed a booth and is trying for the first time a new, ventless exhaust system to keep odors and grease from escaping into the surrounding environment, thus allowing them to do on-site cooking.

A special Classroom 2000 Exhibit was on display, featuring new communications and teaching technology expected for agricultural education classrooms in the year 2000.

N.Y. Farm Show Feb. 23-25

LIVERPOOL, N.Y. — The 10th annual New York Farm Show promises to be winter's biggest event for farmers.

The indoor farm show brings some 400 agribusinesses to the New York State Fairgrounds, Feb. 23-25. Show hours Thursday through Saturday are 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The New York Farm Show is one-stop-shopping at its best. Want to know what's new in milking equipment and parlor design? The New York Farm Show will show you. Or have a question about tillage equipment to meet your conservation plan? Representatives from major equipment manufacturers can explain all there is to know about "iron." What about new computer software for cropping, production and accounting records? You'll find that, too, at New York Farm Show.

"New York Farm Show is a great opportunity to see different manufacturers and compare what they have to offer," said Scott Grigor, farm show manager. "Farmers can find out what's coming up for the next season —what's the latest technology, what's happening in chemicals, equipment and services. It's one-stop shopping at its best."

And if that isn't enough to prompt a late-winter trip to the Farm Show, you surely won't want to miss the expanded conservation display that includes The Choice Farm — a model farm demonstrating 30 conservation practices.

In addition, New York Farm Show hosts special farm health and safety displays and a captivating array of antique tractors and farm toys. What more could a farm family want to put the winter blahs at bay?

New York Farm Show is sponsored by the New York Equipment Dealers Association and American Agriculturist magazine. Tickets are available free from New York state farm equipment dealers or by writing New York Farm Show, P.O. Box 3470, Syracuse, NY 13220. Include a self addressed, stamped, legal envelope.

Va. Breeder To Head American Angus Association

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — T. D. Steele, Roanoke, Va., was elected president of the American Angus Association for 1995 at the Association's Annual Meeting Nov. 14 in Louisville, Ky. Some 300 delegates elected to represent the members in their various states also elected a vice president and five members to the board of directors.

The new vice president is Ralph Bridges of Lexington, Ga. Elected to the 15-member board of directors for three-year terms were William Borror, Tehama, Calif.; Leroy Baldwin, Ocala, Fla.; John Hamilton, Miles City, Mont.; Henry Bergfeld, Summitville, Ohio; and Robert Hillier, Garden City, Kan.

T.D. Steele, the association's new president, served as vice president during the 1994 fiscal year, and prior to that he served six years on the board of directors. He started in the Angus business in 1950 in partnership with his father. He has operated the Lynn Brae herd at Roanoke, Va., since 1955 and his son Roger joined him in business in 1980. They also operate Mill Brae Ranch near Maple Hill, Kan.

Born in West Virginia, Steele received his bachelor's degree from Harvard University. After serving three years in the U.S. Navy, he earned his master's degree from Virginia Polytechnic Institute. He has been an active real estate developer since 1950.

Elected to the board of directors of the Certified Angus Beef Program in 1984, Steele later was elected to the American Angus Association board of directors. During the 1993 fiscal year he held the office of American Angus Association treasurer.

Steele was one of the founders of the Virginia Beef Cattle Improvement Association in 1955, and he has been an active promoter of beef cattle performance testing. Also active in the Virginia Angus Association, Steele has served several terms on the board of directors and was president of the association in 1957 and 1980. He is involved in many civic and charitable organizations and is a long-term member of the board of trustees of Roanoke College.

Ralph Bridges, the new American Angus Association vice president, has served six years on the association's board of directors. Last year he was treasurer of the association. He bought his first Angus cattle 50 years ago and his herd has been designated a Historic Angus Herd by the American Angus Association.

Bridges and his wife Margaret have six children and all of them and their families are involved in the family farming operation. In addition to some 500 registered Angus cows they have a large commercial cow-calf operation and raise some 500,000 turkeys each year.

A past president of the Georgia Angus Association, Bridges also served as president of the Georgia Cattlemen's Association, and he was named that organization's 1991 Seedstock Breeder of the Year.

The American Angus Association is the world's largest beef cattle registry organization with 1994 registrations of more than 214,000 head. Its headquarters has been in St. Joseph, Mo., since 1956. The annual meeting of the Association is held annually in conjunction with the North American International Livestock Exposition in Louisville, Ky.

Tax Week At Penn State Begins Dec. 5

UNIVERSITY PARK, (Centre Co.) — Tax accountants, attorneys, certified public accountants, and other professionals who file income tax returns for businesses and individuals will meet in State College on December 5 for the 42nd annual Tax Week at Penn State.

The 1994 Tax Week, which runs through December 9, will feature a combination of technical tax topics and special interest workshops. The event begins with a Penn State Tax Institute on Monday and Tuesday and concludes with a special workshop about limited liability companies and partnerships on Thursday and Friday.

Topics for the first two days include practical application of the 1993 tax law, tax legislation anticipated in 1995, fiduciary tax returns, and basic rules for federal estate and gift taxes. Pennsylvania state income tax, retirement planning and unique problems related to filing small business tax returns also will be examined.

Tuesday afternoon's session will include an in-depth analysis of exempt organization taxation. The tax rules that affect these volunteer groups, such as fire associations and other community service organizations, often are misinterpreted. The session will provide helpful information to tax professionals who serve these groups.

Wednesday's sessions will focus on specialized topics that concern most tax preparers, including tax rules affecting the sale of a residence, home offices, property transfers and federal and state payroll taxes.

A workshop focusing on tax rules for limited liability companies and partnerships will be conducted on Thursday and Friday, December 8-9. This workshop will provide valuable information about forming, operating and making distributions from businesses that operate as limited loss companies or partnerships.

Dr. William Kulsrud, associate professor of accountancy at Indiana University, and Dr. Robert Jamison, associate professor of accountancy at the University of Illinois, will serve as instructors for the workshop. Their recently completed reference book on limited liability companies and partnerships will be the primary text for the workshop, and participants will receive a copy.

For registration forms and more information about Tax Week at Penn State, write to the Agricultural Short Courses Office, The Pennsylvania State University, 306 Agricultural Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802, or call (814) 865-8301.

ANTICIPATORY FEEDING BY BROILERS

H. S. Siegel
Professor

The pattern of feed consumption — that is, the amount and the time that the birds eat — is an important consideration for broiler producers and processors.

Feed efficiency, clearance of the digestive tract before processing, and resistance to high temperature are associated with the pattern of feed intake. Restricting the length of time available for feeding often gives improved feed conversion, but it also often leads to overconsumption that can hinder feed clearance from the gut in rapidly growing broilers.

Excessive amounts of feed in the digestive tract are detrimental to effective heat loss during high temperature exposure and may also cause problems at the processing plant.

Any factor that causes overconsumption may be detrimental to gut clearance. One of these factors is anticipatory feeding, which is defined as increased consumption of feed before a recurring period of feed unavailability. In other words, when birds become accustomed to periods when feed is not present (or at least not seen), such as periods of darkness, they consume extra amounts of feed ahead of time in anticipation of the non-feeding period.

Feed consumption prior to darkness is often greater than that occurring after the dark period, according to May and Lott (1992), but anticipatory feeding does not occur when broilers are provided continuous, constant intensity light.

However, May and Lott (1994) point out that a number of factors may stimulate anticipatory feeding. Many commercial broiler and turkey houses are curtain-sided and therefore the birds are exposed to daily cycles of temperature and light intensity changes. Their studies show that if feed is available, bright periods of light (9.5-12.0 foot candles) followed by dim periods (0.5-1.5 foot candles) would stimulate birds to increase feed consumption in the hour before the light began to dim.

The effect was not as dramatic as when there was total darkness alternated with periods of light. The researchers also showed that although birds ate more at lower temperatures, this was not considered anticipatory feeding, as the birds did not anticipate the onset of high temperature by beginning to eat just before temperature rose.

This research suggests that synchronization of the bird's biological clock to visually stimulated senses is an important cue to regulate feeding behavior. Regular periodic noises or appearances of caretakers may provide other cues.

For more information on anticipatory feeding, poultry producers should consult Dr. J. D. May, USDA-ARS, South Central Poultry Research Laboratory, Mississippi State, MS 39762.

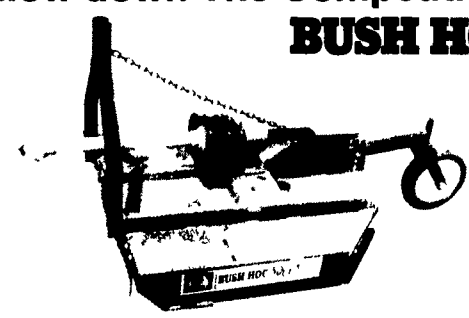
Why Bush Hog Squealers Mow down The Competition

BUSH HOG



There are two basic reasons and quality is the first. Each Squealer model is equipped with Bush Hog's tough gearbox that carries a 2-year warranty. All models, except the 42-inch wide cutter feature oval blade pans, and the 60 and 72-inch wide models have an "in-line" shear bolt with ball bearing protection that can be replaced in a snap An optional slip clutch is available.

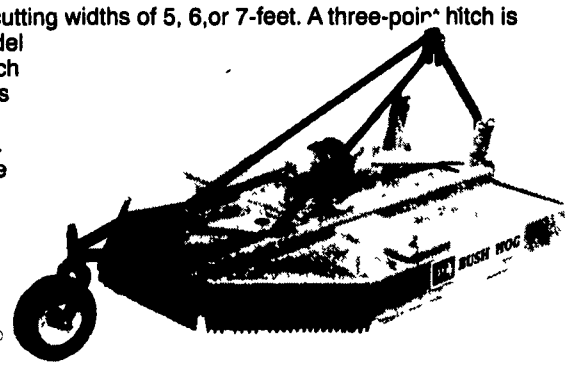
The second reason for the Squealer's popularity is price Select any of 5 models, 42 to 84-inches wide, and compare prices with the competition With a true price/quality comparison, it's easy to see why Squealers mow down the competition.

For Pastures, For Roadsides, For Stalks... Here's The Rotary Cutter You Need.

Bush Hog's medium duty 270 Series Rotary Cutters are excellent tools for the widest variety of land maintenance chores. And they're built tough, built to withstand rugged cutting in material up to 2-inches thick. Decks are 10 gauge steel, continuous welded and braced at all stress points.

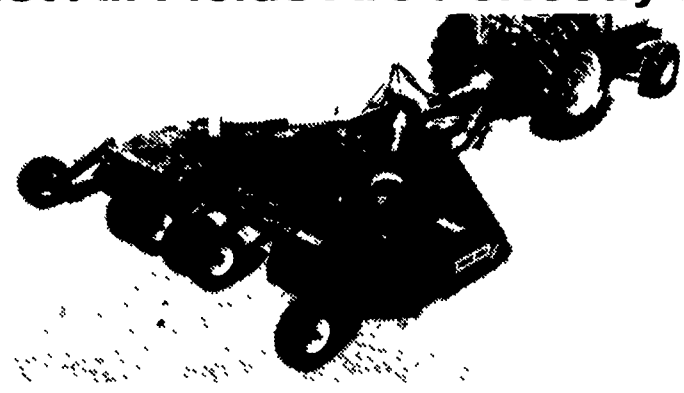
Select from three models, in cutting widths of 5, 6,or 7-feet. A three-point hitch is standard, and for the 7-foot model and economical semi-mount hitch is available. Round bladeholders and laminated wheels are also standard on all models.

Come in today and learn more about Bush Hog's 270 Series Rotary Cutters.



BUSH HOG

Not All Fields Are Perfectly Flat



That's why the Bush Hog® model 2615 15-foot cutter's wings are designed to float along contours as severe as 90 degrees up or 22 degrees down while shredding stalks, clipping pastures or cutting along rights-of-ways, drainage ditches, terraces and fence rows. As it does so, an automatic height adjustment keeps the wings cutting at the same height as the center section. A framing system featuring closed box members allows us to make the 2615 pounds lighter without sacrificing any of the strength you've come to expect from a Bush Hog. And, less weight not only means less wear and tear on your tractor but it has also allowed us to cut the price.

Why pay more to get less - make a Bush Hog's success your success.

Farm Respiratory Hazards Increase In Winter Months

UNIVERSITY PARK, (Centre Co.) — As winter approaches, farmers need to be more aware of respiratory hazards on the farm, said a safety expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Dust particles, toxic gases, chemical vapors and fumes pose a serious threat to farmers' health, and can be particularly threatening in fall and winter," said Dr. Dennis Murphy, professor of agricultural engineering. "Dust and fume levels can rise significantly inside silos, barns and other buildings."

In fall, many farmers make silage to feed their livestock, which can increase gas hazards. "Gases formed by the natural fermentation of chopped silage shortly after it is placed in a silo will continue to be a very real hazard for as long as silage remains a common livestock feed," Murphy warns. "After a silo is filled, dangerous levels of gas may persist for two to three weeks.

"These gases can cause unconsciousness, injury and death, especially in the first 48 to 60 hours after filling," Murphy said. "If you don't have a self-contained breathing respirator—one with its own air supply—stay out of the silo for at least 60 hours."

After 60 hours, use the blower to ventilate the silo before entering without a self-contained breathing apparatus, Murphy said. "Open all doors, run the blower fan for 20 minutes and leave it running while you're in the silo. Enter only after you have put on a respirator for toxic dust and have a second person standing by to assist in an emergency."

Children should be of special concern, because the silage operation often is a fun event for them. "Do whatever is necessary to keep kids from straying into silo areas during filling or for the two weeks when dangerous gases are present," Murphy said. "This may mean padlocking doors or even placing fences or barricades in needed locations."

As the weather gets colder, farm buildings often are closed to protect farm animals. "But closing farm buildings also reduces air quality by limiting circulation, sometimes allowing dust and other particles to reach more hazardous concentrations," Murphy said

Organic dust toxic syndrome, or ODTS, is a farm-related respiratory illness that causes flu-like symptoms such as fever, headache and muscular pains. Less common but more serious is farmer's lung, an allergic reaction caused by inhaling dust from moldy hay, grain or straw that can cause permanent lung damage.

Toxic gases also may be present in poorly ventilated buildings, particularly those adjacent to or over manure pits.

"These gases include hydrogen sulfide, which has a rotten egg smell at low concentrations and is extremely lethal at higher concentrations," Murphy said. "Ammonia has a very offensive odor that usually causes workers to leave the area. Methane is a very explosive gas at higher concentrations, and carbon dioxide cuts the oxygen in the air. Even low levels of hydrogen sulfide and ammonia will produce eye and lung irritations, headaches, dizziness and drowsiness."

All farmers and farm workers should use personal protective equipment when working in dusty buildings or around potentially hazardous gases. Use respirators approved by the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health in dusty environments. "Respirator prices vary considerably depending on the type needed, but it's smart to invest in the right kind of equipment for the hazards on your farm," Murphy said. "Disposable mechanical filter respirators can be bought for under $10. Many nondisposable models are less than $50."

People who must enter manure pits during maintenance, repair or rescue operations should wear a self-contained breathing apparatus, or SCBA. "But using a SCBA effectively is not easy and many units cost around $1,000," Murphy said. "Farmers who must enter manure pits without a SCBA should have a powered, continuous fresh air, explosion-proof ventilation system. They must wear a safety harness or belt with a lifeline attached to a mechanical lifting device, and have someone within seeing or hearing range who can operate the lifting device in an emergency. Testing the pit atmosphere for toxic gases or oxygen deficiency before maintenance and repair also is a good idea."

Gehl Introduces Total Density Control Balers

WEST BEND, Wis. — The new Gehl "75 Series" refines "total density control baling" with a host of new features designed to simplify operation, improve performance, and enhance your baling process. A new electronic bale control system with digital readout is available to monitor baler functions while providing the convenience of additional control from the tractor seat.

With a Gehl total density control baler, you can pack more material in every bale. That means fewer bales to make, move, store and feed. So you save valuable time in every step of your round baling operation.

This unique round baling system gives you complete control over the size of the bale core and the density of the outer wrap. You can easily custom-build your bales according to changing crop and moisture conditions to preserve maximum nutrient value.

Loan Forgiveness Available

HARRISBURG (Dauphin) — A loan forgiveness program is available for recent college graduates, working on family farms and veterinarians treating farm animals, Sen. Noah Wenger (R-36) said.

Wenger said the program, which is administered by the Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency (PHEAA), is designed to encourage college students studying agriculture to return to family farms after graduation. The agency will repay PHEAA Guaranteed Student Loans of up to S2,000 per year for each year a student works at his or her family farm, up to $10,000.

In addition, the program is open to veterinanans who choose to practice on farm animals. To be eligible for the program, veterinarians must be certified by the U.S. Department of Agriculture to sign health certificates required for interstate commerce of agricultural animals. They must also be able to certify regulatory testing for diseases such as bovine tuberculosis and brucellosis.

All applicants must be state residents, Wenger said. In addition, they must hold a degree from a Pennsylvania school or college in a field related to the production of agricultural products or veterinary medicine and be in their first year of full-time employment. Only PHEAA loans will be forgiven, Personal loans are not eligible.

"This is another good way to encourage young people to return to the family farm," said Wenger. "Pennsylvania is trying to preserve farmland, this program helps bring farmers home to work on it."

Applications are available at Sen. Wenger's offices, located at 161 Merts Drive in Elizabethtown and 1248 West Main Street in Ephrata.

The deadline to apply for the loan forgiveness program this year is November 15.

Deere Introduces Mulch Finisher

MOLINE, Ill. — One of the newest members of John Deere's broad line of conservation tillage machines is the 726 mulch finisher.

Replacing the 724, the new model features increased clearances for better residue flow through the machine, adjustable disk-gang height for flexibility in varying types of residue, and more sizes to match tractor horsepower requirements. The 726 also offers a choice of two precision depth-control systems to suit operator preference.

Not an update, the redesigned 726 combines finishing disks along with field cultivator shanks and a tine-tooth or spike-tooth harrow to perform multiple operations in one pass.

With new 24-inch under-frame clearance and 120-inch fore-and aft clearance, the 726 is capable of handling higher residue levels.

The John Deere 726 mulch finisher features increased clearances for better residue flow through the machine and adjustable disk-gang height for flexibility in varying types of residue. The 726 is available in nine sizes ranging from 12 feet 9 inches to 38 feet 3 inches.

Both on-rank spacing and diagonal spacing between standards have been increased as well.

The new 9-inch C-shank spacing teamed with 10-inch Tru-Width™ sweeps provides increased residue handling and one-inch sweep overlap for complete tillage and weed cutting across the entire working width of the machine. the Tru-Width sweep maintains its full cutting width and point throughout the life of the sweep.

The tine-tooth harrow also provides more clearance for better residue flow. The distance between ranks of the 5-bar harrow has been increased by 25 percent compared to the previous model. A spike-tooth harrow is also available for breaking clods in heavier, wet soils.

Rugged New Loader For Genesis Tractors

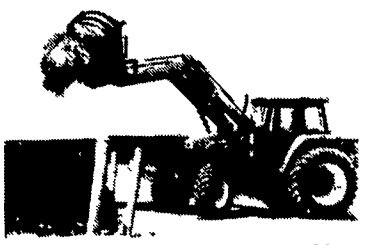
NEW HOLLAND, (Lancaster Co.) — The New Holland Model 7514 loader is a "muscle" unit for use with their new Genesis™ series tractors.

It fits both two-and four-wheel-drive versions of the Models 8670, 8770, 8870 and 8970 tractors, said Product Manager Steve Bussanmas.

Drive in quick-attach mounting or removal from the tractor requires only about five minutes, so it doesn't tie up the tractor for other work. Buckets, grapple fork, or round bale spear for the new loader are attached and locked from the tractor seat in seconds.

The "7514" loader frame is compatible with the Super Steer™ front axles with largest tires at full oscillation, according to Bussanmas. Optional joystick hydraulic control simplifies operation. Low profile provides fullest visibility from the tractor seat.

The new "7514" loader is especially versatile for work in feed yards and large dairies, Bussanmas said. It lifts more than 1 1/4 tons to 14 feet 2 inches and has a 11 foot dump clearance height for filling tall trucks. Breakout capacity is more than 3 3/4 tons. A wide variety of attachments includes material buckets, heavy-duty grapple fork, and round bale spear. Mechanical self-levelling linkage reduces spillage in loose or runny material.



The new Model 7514 New Holland loader fits all two and four-wheel drive Genesis™ tractors. Drive in quick-attach mounting lets operators mount or remove the loader in about five minutes, according to Product Manager Steve Bussanmas. Loader buckets and other attachments mount and are locked from the tractor seat in seconds.

PAMB Elects Officers

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Kay E. Hollabaugh of Biglerville, has been elected chairperson of the Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Board for 1994-95, Pennsylvania's apple producers announced recently.

The annual election of officers was held at the board's July meeting in Harrisburg. As the new board chairperson, Hollabaugh will serve a one-year term.

Hollabaugh is market and office manager for Hollabaugh Brothers Fruit Market and Farms, a 500-acre fruit farm in Biglerville specializing in wholesale, retail and gift pack operations. She also is the first woman ever elected chairperson of Pennsylvania's Apple Marketing Board.

"I am looking forward to building on the success this program has enjoyed in the past," she said. "The marketing of both fresh and processed products to consumers is essential to our business."

As board chairperson, Hollabaugh will follow H. Lee Showalter of Waynesboro, who lead the program through the past two marketing seasons.

"During the past two years, the program has taken bold new steps that are helping us better compete on a regional basis," Showalter said. "We have set a course for the future designed to give consumers what they want most—Locally Grown Fresh Apples."

Others officers elected for the 1994-1995 year include Vice Chairperson Gail McPherson of New Park, and secretary/treasurer Gordon Post of North East.

The Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Board is the commonwealth's oldest grower-funded agricultural marketing program. Established in 1968 by the state's apple growers and the Pennsylvania department of Agriculture, the program provides consumer education, merchandising, public relations and market information services.

NSIA Congratulates Sales Manager

LEOLA (Lancaster Co.) — Nutrient Solutions in Agriculture (NSIA), the farm nutrient management planning service division of Gro-Mor Plant Food Company, Inc., congratulates Donald Babcock for winning the first quarter prize of a $50 award in their fall 1994-spring 1995 farm nutrient management plan enrollment contest.

Babcock is the territorial sales manager for Gro-Mor Plant Food Company in central up-state New York, and has been with the company for more than eight years.

Babcock showed outstanding results in the first quarter of this contest, and credits this in part to the increased profits his farmers are realizing from following the nutrient management plans that NSIA develops for their farms.

6 New Models To Deere Rotary Cutter Line

MOLINE, Ill. — John Deere has introduced three new flex-wing cutters and three new economy cutters to its product line.

The flex-wing models include the 15-foot heavy-duty 1518, the 10-foot right-hand offset 1518, and a 15-foot medium-duty 1517. The three 13 Series economy cutters—the 4-foot 413, 5-foot 513, and 6-foot—replace the 403, 503 and 603 models.

The redesigned heavy-duty 1518 updates the previous model 1518. For added durability, the new 1518 incorporates key design features of the larger 2018 such as heavy-duty round tubular axles with increased sectional strength. The non-suspension axle is available in a four-wheel or six-wheel configuration. A six-wheel spring-suspension axle is available as an option.

A new jaw-type, swivel clevis minimizes drawbar wear and increases the life of the clevis. The square deck corners on the wings optimize material flow to the blades to take full advantage of the cutting width of the machine. Wings flex 112 degrees (90 degrees up and 22 degrees down) to follow ground contours for even cutting.

The right-hand offset 11518 features a stabilizer weight box that is attached to the center deck in place of the left wing. The cutter has the same wing flexibility as th heavy-duty model and uses the same John Deere gearcases rated at 120 horsepower in the 1000-rpm version and 100 horsepower in the 540-rpm version. A six-inch blade ensures a full 10-foot cutting width. The five-steel axle with spring suspension helps smooth out rough conditions for a more uniform cut.

The medium-duty 1517 flex-wing cutter has a heavy-duty deck similar to the 1518's and offers the same axle/wheel options. The hitch features a cast clevis. A jaw-type, swivel clevis is optional. The center-deck and wing gearcases are John Deere designed and built, and rated at 80 horsepower for both 1000-and 540-rpm versions.

All three flex-wing models features 160-horsepower power-divider gearcase and a shearbolt-protected, constant-velocity (CV) PTO input driveline as standard equipment. The CV driveline transmits power smoothly and quietly in turns up to 80 degrees for increased maneuverability with the PTO engaged.

The John Deere 13 Series economy cutters include th e 4-foot 413, the 5-foot 513, and the 6-foot 613. All three models feature increased deck reinforcement, stronger hitch and mast supports, and full-length skid shoes on the die skirts for added strength.

The Thursday morning program will close out with a presentation by Dr. Tom Sims of the University of Delaware on "Managing Agricultural Phosphorous for Environmental Quality."

The Wednesday afternoon session will include presentations on turfgrass disease management and fertility and insect studies on tomatoes, sweet corn and field crops. An interesting regulatory panel of speakers from NJDEP and NJDA will bring all participants up to date on the latest regulatory programs and regulations.

Said Samulis, "We are also fortunate to have Mr. Roger Kaiser of ISK Biosciences Corporation discuss 'Chemicals and the Environment - Current Realities' and Dr. Murray McBride of Cornell University provide information on 'Heavy Metal Accumulation from Land Application of Sludge.'"

"The New Jersey agribusiness meeting will be held on Wednesday afternoon at 4 p.m.," said Rod Wilson, president.

A full program will be held on Thursday, said Wilson, president of Agricultural Organics.

"Presentations will be given on fertility and pest management studies in fruit crops, ornamentals, and turf," he said. An update on the Crop Advisory Certification program will also be presented. "Mr. Robert Kent of the NJDEP Office of Mosquito Control will also talk about the latest application technology," Wilson said. The major morning session will close out with a presentation on Chemical Composition of Municipal Leaf Waste in New Jersey."

Two sessions will run concurrently with the Thursday program. The morning session will feature a motivational workshop, "Motivation Leadership & Time Management - How to Use These for Profit in 1995" by Doug McCabe of Excel Management Group. New Market For Sorghum

WASHINGTON, D.C. — "Export demand for sorghum is always strong, but recent sales to Australia indicate that a significant amount of U.S.-produced sorghum may be moving into a nontraditional market this year," said J. Wesley Robinson, manager of international operations, U.S. Feed Grains Council, while in Australia. It is confirmed that Australia purchased 22,500 mt (886,500 bushels) of U.S. sorghum through the week ending Nov. 3.

"Permits for over 200,000 metric tons (7.8 million bushels) of sorghum have been issued in Australia," Robinson said. "Most of the sales under these permits have been contracted, or will be contracted shortly. A majority of those contracts will be filled by U.S. suppliers."

Australia has experienced drought conditions since 1991, and recent projections indicated it will continue into 1995. The drought has affected the 1994 winter planting of sorghum by Australian producers. Robinson, who conducts trade servicing for the Council throughout Asia and Pacific Rim countries, has recently been working in Australia to assist buyers in their knowledge of the U.S. grain marketing system and the most efficient ways to access U.S.-produced sorghum to cover their immediate feed grains needs.

BARN CLEANERS

All-forged Hook-Link® chain... available on Super 300 and Super 500 barn cleaners

Extra thick steel at all wear points

IMPORTANT: Look for the "parting line" on any barn cleaner chain you buy. It shows where excess metal has been trimmed off. It is your assurance that the link was totally forged, not just punched out of a flat steel bar with grain flow in one direction only.
You want a totally-forged link because forging changes the grain on the steel, causing it to curve in unbroken flow lines around the contours of the link, giving the link greater strength to serve you longer.

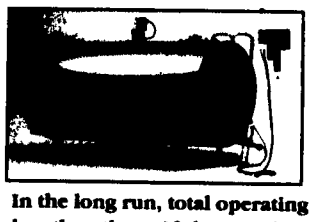
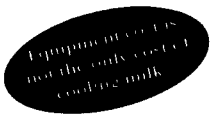
MUELLER DAIRY FARM EQUIPMENT

Offer

Scroll-Compressor Technology
New in 1994



You may pay less for some dairy farm equipment... but it can cost you more!



In the long run, total operating costs of a Mueller milk-cooling system are generally substantially less than those of "bargain-brand" milk-cooling equipment.

Example	Mueller	Competition
Cost of equipment	$31,000	$28,000

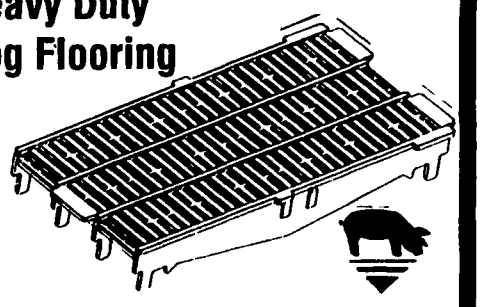
REPLACING HOG FLOORING? CONSIDERING NEW CONSTRUCTION? ☑ CHECK OUT Polygrate™
Heavy Duty Hog Flooring



Time Tested and Proven
This style of POLYGRATE was first introduced in 1981. Over the years Farocx has continued to refine this product. POLYGRATE is one of only a few "World Class" floors that has stood this test of time.

Outstanding Traction
POLYGRATE'S unique "high-low" finger design provides outstanding traction for pigs of all sizes, while enhancing safety and comfort.
◆ POLYGRATE'S rounded corners minimize injuries. The edges are beveled providing a smoother, safer surface that promotes comfort, too.

What Does This All Add Up To?
◆ More piglets survive until weaning
◆ Less splay/spraddle leg problems
◆ Heavier piglets at weaning
◆ Better conditioned sows at weaning

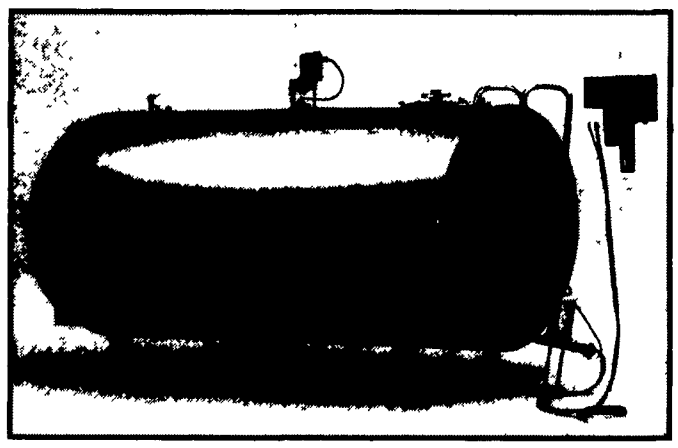
Scroll-Compressor Technology

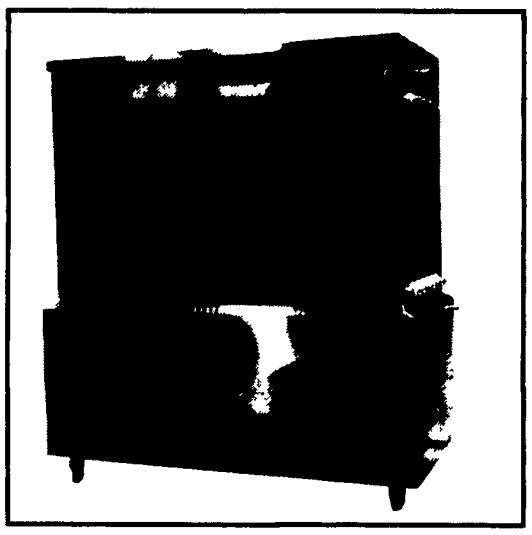
New in 1994

You may pay less for some dairy farm equipment... but it can cost you more!



In the long run, total operating costs of a Mueller® milk-cooling system are generally substantially less than those of "bargain-priced" milk-cooling equipment.

Equipment cost is not the only cost of cooling milk.



Example	Mueller	Competition
Cost of equipment	$31,000	$28,000
Cost of electricity @ .08 kW for 12,000 lbs milk/day for 10 years	$ 17,550	$22,850
Total operating cost for 10 years	$48,550	$50,850
Savings	$ 2,300

Mueller scroll compressors have higher energy-efficiency ratings (EER), and are highly durable with only two major components, compared to our competitors' reciprocating compressors requiring 12 parts.

U.S. Corn Sales Harbinger Of Future?

WASHINGTON, D.C., — "The United States has had its first confirmed sale of corn to China since China's August announcement that it would not export any more corn this year," said Kenneth Hobbie, U.S. Feed Grains Council president and CEO. Thirty-five thousand metric tons (1.38 million bushels) was purchased for December shipment.

"Although we are aware of reports of other unconfirmed U.S. corn sales to China, today's confirmed sale is a harbinger of a great year ahead for U.S. feed grains exports. That is despite the fact that China may only temporarily withdraw from the world market as a corn exporter. We have a substantial high-quality crop, and demand such as seen in China, and throughout the Southeast Asia region this year, will help us move that crop," Hobbie said.

The Council's World Feed Grains Demand Model indicates that although China will progress toward a more market-oriented economy, and remain a corn exporter in the next decade, domestic growth in feed grains consumption will outpace any gains in production. While China was able to export 11.4 million metric tons (444.7 million bushels) in 1993, it is projected that exports will drop to 4.0 million metric tons (158.2 million bushels) in 1994, and decline throughout the century until China becomes a net importer.

"Through the Council's export market development programs we have observed first-hand the rapid population and economic growth occurring in China. The large amount of land being taken out of production to expand cities, combined with a population that has the means to improve their diets by including more meat, milk and eggs has rapidly increased demand for feed grains in that country," Hobbie said.

National FFA Names Star Farmer, Star Agribusiness Recipients

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Brian Wade Johnson, 21, Gotebo, Okla., and David Snyder, 21, Hamilton, N.Y., were named the American Star Farmer and the American Star in Agribusiness, respectively, at the 67th National FFA Convention. Each received a $2,000 cash award and will participate in an international experience program in Europe for achieving FFA's highest honor.

Each star was chosen from a field of four national finalists. Lloyd H. Vaill Jr., 20, Pine Plains, N.Y.; Jeral Gross, 21, Bridgewater, S.D.; and Jamie Judd, 22, LaValle, Wis., were the other three star farmer candidates chosen from 1,454 American FFA Degree recipients. Neal C. Floyd, 21, Nicholasville, Ky.; Tammy L. Yost, 20, Joliet, Mont.; and Craig Eric Daniels, 21, Montello, Wis., were the other three star in agribusiness candidates chosen.

National, state, and local FFA officials selected the stars on the basis of knowledge of their enterprises, management skills, return on investments and growth of their programs. The stars were also judged on leadership abilities demonstrated through their FFA activities.

Each finalist received $1,000 from the National FFA Foundation, Inc., and the national winners received an additional $1,000. The Stars Ova America recognition represents the highest achievement awarded in the organization.

FFA Selects Snyder

David Snyder, Hamilton, N.Y., started out with a push mower, a gas can and snow shovel. Now this entrepreneur operates Snyder Services, a successful residential and commercial mowing, landscaping and snow removal business. For his career achievements, the National FFA Organization has selected Snyder for the 1994 American Star in Agribusiness Award.

Snyder, 21, began his business in 1984 servicing customers on his street by mowing lawns on weekends and shoveling snow before and after school. Today, Snyder Services hires one parttime and four full-time employees.

"When I bought my first lawn mower and started mowing four neighborhood lawns, I never realized that I was starting my future business," Snyder said.

Snyder provides services for 25 commercial and 70 residential properties in the Hamilton, N.Y., area. "I offer year-round service to my customers. During the winter months I remove snow, salt, and sand, and clear walks and driveways. A large number of my customers have asked for my help all year."

Additionally, he donates services to the local Food Cupboard and SOMAC, the Southern Madison County Ambulance Corporation.

Snyder's success has come with hard work, as well as a dedication to customer service. He helps his employees understand customer relations and improve their communications skills.

Snyder, son of Howard and Patricia Snyder, has been recognized by the National FFA Organization in the past for his business and leadership skills. He has been named State Star Agribusinessman, regional winner of the Turf and Landscape Proficiency Award, and National Agricultural Sales and/or Service Proficiency Award winner.

Adviser of the Hamilton FFA, Neil Lamb, said, "David took complete advantage of the SAE program. He developed a program and has made it into his profession. I have been most impressed with his professionalism and pride in his business. The payoff has been loyal and satisfied customers."

FFA Names Johnson

Brian Johnson, Gotebo, Okla., did not begin his agricultural career on a traditional family farm. However, his determination and the support from his family helped make his goals for a successful, diversified agricultural enterprise come true. For his accomplishments as an agricultural leader and producer, Johnson, 21, has been recognized by the National FFA Organization with the 1994 American Star Farmer award.

Johnson's family background is rural, but not typical. His family bought 60 acres and some sheep back in 1978 as a way for his father to "relax" after his job. Johnson became responsible for the sheep when he was eight years old and developed a love of livestock and an early appreciation for hard work that became the foundations for his present agricultural enterprises.

In 1989, Johnson oversaw 100 acres that he rented. He went on to own that land and purchase the machinery necessary to maintain it. After a series of acquisitions and agreements, Johnson's enterprises grew to include the 160 acres he owns, the 100 acres he rents, and the 1,120 acres he has in partnership with his father. The sheep flock consists of 250 ewes including 90 head of his own and 20 head purchased with his father. The rest belong to his sister and father.

The addition of rented acres to Johnson's program has allowed him to diversify into a fullscale stocker cattle operation to complement his sheep, wheat, forage, and cotton operations. The cattle operation, a partnership venture for Johnson and his father, has had as many as 450 head, and his cow-calf herd includes 21 cows and one bull. "Aside from cash flow, growing pains have been my biggest problem," said Johnson. "Rapid growth in cattle numbers drastically increased labor and management time because of makeshift facilities. I decided to build permanent receiving and shipping facilities that allow two men to do the work of four in less time."

Johnson has been recognized as regional winner in both the Agricultural Electrification and the Diversified Livestock Proficiency awards. In 1990, he was named a national winner in the Home and/or Farmstead Improvement Proficiency Award, and in 1991 he was named Star Farmer of Oklahoma.

The son of two former teachers, Bradley and Sue Johnson, Brian is a full-time student at Cameron University.

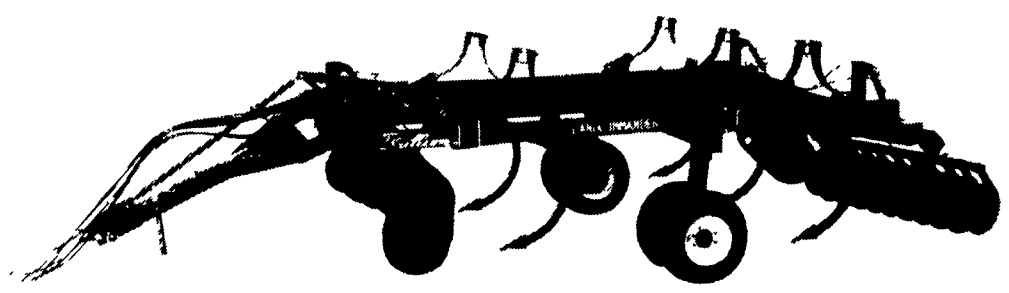
Brillion

LANDCOMMANDER



In Stock: Brillion LCS3301 Land Commander

3-Shank, 30 Inch Spacing, 11 Ft. 4 Inch Transport Width

TAKE COMMAND OF TILLAGE PROBLEMS

Brillion's Landcommander gives you total command over the problems of compaction, soil erosion, residue management, and rough fields.

Simple disc gang depth adjustment, innovative design, and heavy duty construction. The new Brillion Landcommander is built in the old Brillion tradition. We make "tough tillage tools."

The Landcommander has the ability to till from 8" to 20" deep. This allows you to work through the deepest compaction zones. Brillion gives you the choice of 24" or 30" shank spacing. Automatic reset shanks allow non-stop farming. Thirty-nine inches of underframe clearance allows the unit to work heavy residue without plugging.
